

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. University of Michigan

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The twelfth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 25, 1906, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from textbooks and collections of cases.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of every State in the Union, the reports of the Federal Courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, and Canadian reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series, one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and copies of the statutes of many of the States, and of the United States. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well provided with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals. The Journal of Jurisprudence (Edinburgh), the Law Quarterly Review (London), the American Law Review, the American Law Register, the Criminal Law Magazine, the Albany Law Journal, the Central Law Journal, the Juridical Review, the Green Bag, and others are regularly taken and kept on file.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; and, recently, by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the State, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

The late Hon. Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars. This gift, which has been used in the purchase of books, has added materially to the value and efficiency of the large collection of reports and text-books presented to the library by Mr. Buhl a few years ago, and known as the Buhl

Law Library. It has enabled the Department to provide for its students library facilities that are second to none in the country.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4.30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

TUITION FEES

For three or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars for each subject elected. Students paying the full fee in this Department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00, per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure a certificate showing the work passed as given in the Summer Session.

Students desiring credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for work done in the Summer Session must at the time they enroll in the Summer Session secure from the Dean of the Department permission to apply for advanced standing in the subjects in which credit is desired. They will then be enrolled by the Secretary of the Department as candidates for advanced standing in such subjects as are included in their certificates from the Dean, and on satisfying the professor in charge of any subject as to previous study and passing a satisfactory examination on that subject in the Summer Session, they will be given credit therefor in the regular course.

The regulations governing admission to advanced standing are published in the Department Announcement. They will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten in an office and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing.

All students intending to seek admission to the second-year class on examination are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity for thorough review provided by the Summer courses.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion.

The following courses are offered:—

Agency.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Professor GODDARD.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Clark on Criminal Law. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Procedure.—Clark's Criminal Procedure. Professor BUNKER.

Domestic Relations.—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Professor SAGE.

Elementary Law.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Books I, II. Professor DRAKE.

Real Property (Elementary).—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. Professor DRAKE.

Sales.—Tiffany on Sales. Professor LANE.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. Professor SAGE.

Bailments and Carriers.—Goddard's Outlines and Cases. Professor GODDARD.

Bills and Notes.—Bigelow's Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.

Code Pleading.—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.

Common Law Pleading.—Martin's Civil Procedure. Professor BOGLE.

Corporations (Private).—Clark on Corporations and Cases. Professor GODDARD.

Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Professor SAGE.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Eaton's Equity Jurisprudence. Professor LANE.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Professor BUNKER.

Evidence.—Greenleaf on Evidence, Volume I. Professor LANE.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Professor SAGE.

Quasi-Contracts.—Woodruff's Cases. Professor KNOWLTON.

Real Property (Advanced).—Tiedeman's Cases on Real Property.
Professor DRAKE.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered.

Students paying the full fee may elect courses in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts without additional fee, provided such election does not interfere with their work in this department.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1906-1907 will open on Tuesday, September 25, 1906, and will continue until June 20, 1907.

The course covers three years of instruction, of nine months each. No one method of instruction is exclusively adopted, but, recognizing the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Faculty endeavors so to combine lectures with the use of text-books, and especially with the careful study of illustrative cases, as to give the student the greatest breadth of view, the soundest scholarship, and the best practical training for the active work of his profession.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects:

FIRST YEAR

Agency.
Contracts.
Criminal Law.
Criminal Procedure.
Domestic Relations.
Elementary Law.
Real Property (Elementary).
Sales.
Torts.

SECOND YEAR

Bailments and Carriers.
Bills and Notes.
Common Law Pleading.
Code Pleading.
Corporations.
Damages.
Equity Jurisprudence.
Equity Pleading.
Evidence.
Partnership.
Quasi-Contracts.
Real Property.

THIRD YEAR

Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors, etc.
Constitutional Law.
Conveyancing.
Corporations (Public).
Equity Jurisprudence.
Extraordinary Legal Remedies.
Federal Practice.
Insurance.
Judgments.
Jurisprudence (Science of).
Legal Ethics.
Medical Jurisprudence.
Mortgages.
Practice.
Practice Court.
Private International Law.
Public Officers.
Railway Law.
Roman Law.
Suretyship.
Taxation.
Wills and Administration.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. The non-resident member is engaged in practice, but meets his classes on designated days. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, The Bankruptcy Act, Admiralty Law, Irrigation, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law, Patent Law and Statute Law. There are fifteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1905-1906) nearly nine hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDI- CINE AND SURGERY.

The Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 26th and continue for six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED:—

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete announcement will be sent upon application to James H. Wade, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION

DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The ninth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 22, 1903, and continue for eight weeks. The instruction will be given by members of the Faculty of the Law Department of the University of Michigan, and will consist of a thorough review of the leading topics of the Law.

It will be the aim of the work to meet the needs of those desiring to review their legal studies as a preparation for examinations for admission to the bar, to make up back work, or to take examinations for advanced standing in this or any other law school. Many of the courses, however, are desirable for those who wish a practical knowledge of the law as part of a liberal education, and especially for those looking forward to a commercial career. Much of the work is practically the same as that given in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University. For these purposes the following courses are especially recommended:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Personal Property and Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from text-books and lectures.

LIBRARIES.

The Law Library contains the reports of every State in the Union, the reports of the Federal Courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, and Canadian reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series, one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and copies of the statutes of many of the States, and of the United States. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well provided with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals. The Journal of Jurisprudence (Edinburgh), the Law Quarterly Review (London), the American Law Review, the American Law Register, the Criminal Law Magazine, the Albany Law Journal, the Central Law Journal, the Juridical Review, the Green Bag, and others are regularly taken and kept on file.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Hon. Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; and, recently, by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the State, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

The late Hon. Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars. This gift, which has been used in the purchase of books, has added materially to the value and efficiency of the large collection of reports and text-books presented to the library by Mr. Buhl a few years ago, and known as the Buhl Law Library. It has enabled the Department to provide for its students library facilities that are second to none in the country.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 8 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 5:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the academic year. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and fifty thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

TUITION FEES

For students taking courses amounting in the aggregate to twenty-five or more hours of instruction during the session, the fee is twenty-five dollars.

For students taking courses amounting to less than twenty-five hours, the fee is at the rate of one dollar for each hour of the course or courses taken. But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science and the Arts, may take work in law, not to exceed twenty-five hours in all, for an additional fee of ten dollars.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00, per week.

CREDIT FOR WORK DONE.

Credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for subjects passed in the Summer Session may be granted under the following conditions:—

The student desiring such credit must, when applying for admission to the regular course, first present the required credentials, and satisfy the Dean of the Department as to his right to apply for advanced standing in the second-year or third-year classes. He will then receive credit in subjects passed in the Summer Session in which his credentials would entitle him to ask for an examination for advanced standing. For regulations as to admission to advanced standing, see the regular announcement of the Department of Law.

Furthermore, the rules governing admission to the second-year class will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten under an attorney, and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study under an attorney required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing.

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion. The following courses are offered:—

Agency.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Assistant Professor GODDARD.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Knowlton's Lectures and Cases. Instructor DWYER.

Domestic Relations.—Lectures. Instructor DWYER.

Real Property (Elementary).—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II.
Instructor ROOD.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. Professor BUNKER.

Bailments and Carriers.—Lectures and Cases. Assistant Professor GODDARD.

Bills and Notes.—Bigelow's Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.

Common Law Pleading.—Perry's Common Law Pleading. Professor BUNKER.

Corporations (Private).—Lectures. Professor LANE.

Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Assistant Professor SAGE.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Bispham's Equity Jurisprudence. Instructor
ROOD.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Instructor DWYER.

Evidence.—Greenleaf on Evidence, Volume I., Professor LANE.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Assistant Professor SAGE.

Real Property (Fixtures and Easements, Landlord and Tenant). Lectures.
Professor THOMPSON.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten-months' prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry.

The above brief courses are offered, not, as in any sense, the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

Students may elect courses in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts by paying the necessary fee, provided such election does not interfere with their work in this department.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1903-1904 will open on Tuesday, September 29, 1903 and will continue until the 23rd day of June, 1904.

The course covers three years of instruction, of nine months each. No one method of instruction is exclusively adopted, but, recognizing the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Faculty endeavors so to combine lectures with the use of text-books, and especially with the careful study of illustrative cases, as to give the student the greatest breadth of view, the soundest scholarship, and the best practical training for the active work of his profession.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects: Elementary Law, Elementary Real Property, Contracts, Criminal Law and Procedure, Torts, Domestic Relations, Personal Property, Common Law Pleading, Evidence, Agency, Partnership, Bills and Notes, Bailments and Carriers, Code Pleading, Equity Pleading, Real Property, Equity Jurisprudence, Corporations, Damages, U. S. Practice, Constitutional Law, Federal Jurisprudence, Extraordinary Legal Remedies, Wills, Private International Law, Conveyancing, Suretyship, Mortgages, Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors, the Science of Jurisprudence, Railway Law, Taxation, and Public Officers.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fourteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. The non-resident members, two in number, are engaged in practice, but meet their classes on designated days. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, The Bankruptcy Act, Admiralty Law, Medical Jurisprudence, Injunctions and Receivers, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law and Patent Law. There are fourteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1902-1903) nearly nine hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES.

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Schools.

For further information concerning the Summer Session, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

SUMMER SCHOOL

JULY 7—AUGUST 18, 1897

GENERAL STATEMENTS.

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN SUMMER SCHOOL offers in 1897 courses that may be briefly classified as follows:

Preparatory Courses.—A number of courses have been arranged for the purpose of aiding those who may for any reason wish to review their preparatory studies before entering upon the regular University work.

Special Courses for Teachers.—In almost all lines of work special courses are offered which are designed to aid those who teach, or wish to prepare to teach, in secondary schools.

Advanced Courses.—University students and others who during the summer wish to carry on work in a special line, or to do work that will count toward a degree, will find a large number of courses from which to choose.

REGISTRATION.

Students will register with the Chairman of the Executive Committee in the Dean's office and pay their fees to the Treasurer. The laboratory fees, which are specified below in connection with description of courses, must also be paid to the Treasurer.

TUITION.

| | | | | | | | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|------|
| One course | - | - | - | - | - | - | - | $15 |
| Two courses by the same student | - | - | - | - | - | - | - | $25 |
| Three courses by the same student | - | - | - | - | - | - | - | $30 |

The maximum tuition fee is $30. A full course consists of thirty lessons, one hour a day five days in the week for six weeks. All fees must be paid the first week of the student's attendance.

CREDIT IN THE UNIVERSITY.

Credit will be given to students who are regularly matriculated in the University, subject to the following rules:

- (1) No student shall receive more than six hours credit for work done during one session.
- (2) Not more than twelve hours credit may be secured in the Summer School to count toward a degree.

The credit that will be given for the several courses announced below is mentioned in the description of these courses. If such mention be wanting, no credit will be given.

LIBRARY ADVANTAGES.

THE GENERAL LIBRARY, containing about 90,000 volumes, 16,000 unbound pamphlets, and 1,000 maps, will be open to all students of the Summer School from 8 a. m. till 5 p. m. each day during the session. During the hours when the library is closed regular students of the school will, subject to certain rules, be allowed to take books to their rooms.

Four hundred and fifty periodicals are taken.

THE LAW LIBRARY will also be open to students of that department.

THE ART GALLERY AND MUSEUM will be open to visitors.

LIVING EXPENSES.

The cost of board and rooms will vary from $3.00 to $5.00 a week according to location and manner of living.

COURSE OF FREE LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

The following course of free lectures was given during the last session of the Summer School:

President JAMES B. ANGELL.

The Restriction of Disease,
Dean VICTOR C. VAUGHAN.

Tripartite Division of Education: Elementary, Secondary, and Higher,
Professor BURKE A. HINSDALE.

Two Public Recitals on the Columbian Organ,
Professor ALBERT A. STANLEY.

A similar course may be expected during the session of 1897.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF COURSES.

JULY 7—AUGUST 18.

The recitation hours indicated in connection with the courses announced below will be changed in case of conflicts.

GREEK.

1. Preparatory Greek. Double Course.—(For those who have never studied the language.) The aim of this course will be to complete the usual "first lessons" and the first book of Xenophon's Anabasis. Students who successfully complete the work of this course will be able, by supplementary study, to enter Course 2 (Homer) in the University the second semester of the college year, 1897-98. Those intending to elect the course should purchase before the beginning of the session, White's First Greek Book, published (in 1896) by Ginn & Co., and prepare carefully pages 1-6, repeatedly pronouncing aloud the Greek sentences on pages 206-213. It is recommended that students electing this course undertake no other work during the Summer School session. Two recitations daily, at 9 a. m. and another hour to be arranged. Room 3, T. H. Mr. MEADER.
2. The Poetics of Aristotle.—Particular attention will be given to the study of Aristotle's Theory of Fine Art. Two-fifths credit. Room 3, T. H., at 8. Mr. MEADER.

LATIN.

1. Preparatory Latin:
 - a. Latin Prose.—Translation of English into Latin, with a study of the grammar. Room 3, T. H., at 10. Mr. MEADER.
 - b. Cicero's Orations against Catiline.—Interpretation of the text. Room 3, T. H., at 2. Mr. MEADER.
 - c. Vergil's Aeneid.—Interpretation of the text with a study of prosody. This course will be made to meet the demands of students preparing for college, but special instruction without extra charge will be given teachers in preparatory schools or those planning to teach, to acquaint them with the literature of the subject. Room 20, U. H., at 8. Assistant Professor DRAKE.

These courses will be accepted as partial equivalents for entrance to the University. The amount of credit allowed for them will depend upon the amount of work accomplished.

2. Rapid Reading of Selections from Livy, Nepos, and Martial.—Room 20, U. H., at 9. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
3. Introduction to Roman Political Institutions.—Lectures. This course is designed to supplement the preparation of teachers of history and of Cicero in the preparatory schools, and to give students of the University preparation for work in Roman historical authors. Room 20, U. H., at 11. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
4. Historical Proseminary.—Scriptores Historiæ Augustæ. A study of historical subjects from the sources. Room 20, U. H., at 10. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.

FRENCH.

1. Beginners' Course.—This course is intended to familiarize the student with the rudiments of grammar. In addition to the grammar-work, some easy prose will be translated and pronounced. Room J, U. H., at 11. Assistant Professor LEVI.
2. Modern Prose.—A course in rapid translation designed for those who have already begun the study of French, with a review of the leading points in French grammar and occasional exercises in prose composition. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 8. Mr. EFFINGER.
3. Classic Drama.—A study of the representative plays of Corneille, Molière, and Racine, with assigned readings and informal lectures. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 9. Mr. EFFINGER.
4. Prose Composition.—The work, elementary in nature, will consist in translating from English into French, passages illustrative of the principles of grammar. Oral composition will form a part of the work. Two-fifths credit. Room J, U. H., at 10. Assistant Professor LEVI.
5. Scientific French.—A translation course in modern scientific literature for those who do not care to study French from a literary standpoint. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 10. Mr. EFFINGER.
6. A Summary of the History of French Literature.—Lectures and assigned readings. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 4. Mr. EFFINGER.

GERMAN.

1. Reading of Modern Prose.—The texts to be read will be selected from the modern writers of fiction and history, and the chief object will be the acquisition of a reading knowledge of narrative and historical German prose; much practice will be given in reading at sight. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 8. Dr. MENSEL.
2. German Composition.—Systematic instruction in German syntax with daily exercises in writing German and in other work leading to a practical mastery of the language. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 9. Dr. MENSEL.
3. Classic Drama.—Study of the representative dramas of Lessing, Goethe, or Schiller (choice to be made by class), with lectures and outside reading on the life of the poet and on the history of German literature of the period. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 10. Dr. MENSEL.

As far as possible, the courses will be conducted in German. An elementary course will be added provided there is sufficient demand for it.

ENGLISH AND RHETORIC.

ENGLISH LITERATURE AND LANGUAGE.

1. The Teaching of English Literature.—A review of Brooke's Primer, with assigned readings for each period, and discussions. Considerable time will be given to Shakespeare, and one play (Macbeth) will be read critically in class. Two-fifths credit. Room 10, T. H., at 4. Professor DEMMON.
2. American Literature.—An outline of the subject, with assigned readings from the principal authors, and discussions. Two-fifths credit. Room 10, T. H., at 5. Professor DEMMON.

While either one of the courses may be taken without the other, there will be an advantage in taking them together for purposes of comparative study between British and American authors. The University Library offers excellent facilities for these courses, and students can profitably spend their entire time upon them.

3. Old English (Anglo-Saxon).—For beginners. Two-fifths credit, Room L, U. H., at 2. Professor HEMPL.
4. English Grammar on an Historical Basis.—The course will consist of a study of the elements of English phonology, morphology, and etymology, with the aid of Sweet's Primer of Historical English Grammar, and informal lectures on the chief principles of syntax and on language in general. Two-fifths credit. Room L, U. H., at 3. Professor HEMPL.

ENGLISH COMPOSITION.

1. Paragraph Writing.—Text-book: Scott and Denney's Paragraph Writing. Two-fifths credit. Room L, U. H., at 9. Mr. STRAUSS.
2. Principles of Composition.—Lectures and reading. Barrett Wendell's English Composition will be used for reference. Two-fifths credit. Room L, U. H., at 10. Mr. STRAUSS.

HISTORY.

1. General History, with Special Reference to Mediæval History.—This course will include informal lectures, quizzes, and reports on assigned readings. Among the subjects to be studied will be the decline of Rome, the Germanic invasions and the rise of new peoples, the growth of the Christian church, the progress of the papacy, Mohammedanism, the feudalization of Europe and the feudal system, the struggle between the empire and the papacy, the crusades, the rise of the cities, of the third estate, and of monarchy. There will be no special text-book, but a syllabus will serve as a guide to most of the literature to be used. Two-fifths credit. Room 2, T. H., at 10. Dr. DIXON.

PHILOSOPHY.

1. The Historical Development of Ethical Ideas.—This course does not presuppose more than a good general education. It is specially suited for those who have given some attention to history or literature or to classical learning. It will be found helpful also by any who have interested themselves in sociological or religious questions. Among the problems that will be treated are the following: the moral conceptions of savages; slavery; the rise of the family; the moral ideas involved in the ancient civilizations of India, China, and Palestine; the ethical spirit of Greece and Rome; christianity and ethics; the moral conceptions of mediæval times; and the crisis leading to the appearance of the moral ideas prevalent now. Text-book: Wenley's Socrates and Christ. Two-fifths credit. Room 21, U. H., at 8. Professor WENLEY.
2. General Psychology.—The object of this course will be to give a general description of the more prominent phenomena of consciousness, and, in addition, to emphasize on the one hand the connection between mental and physical facts, and, on the other, to elucidate some of the philosophical implications of psychology. Attention will also be drawn to the important pedagogical uses of the science. Two-fifths credit. Room 21, U. H., at 3. Mr. REBEC.

POLITICAL ECONOMY.*

1. Elements of Political Economy.—Text-book and lectures. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 9. Professor TAYLOR.

* See foot note on page 12.

Students receiving credit for this course will be admitted to all courses in the University for which Course 2 is required; but the acceptance of such credit will debar them from receiving credit for either Course 1 or Course 2.

2. Money and Banking.—Text-book and lectures. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 10. Professor TAYLOR.

Students receiving credit for this course will be debarred from getting credit for Course 9 in the University.

3. History of the Development of Industrial Society.—Lectures, quizzes, and reports on collateral reading. This course embraces a history of English industrial society from the twelfth century to the present time, and is designed to show how modern industrial customs and rights came into existence. It is planned as a general introduction to further work in political economy. Two-fifths credit. Students taking the combined Literary-Law course may elect this work and apply the credit toward this degree. Room 11, T. H., at 11. Dr. DIXON.

MATHEMATICS.

1. Geometry.—A review of plane and solid geometry, preparatory to the University. Text-book: Beman and Smith's Plane and Solid Geometry. Room 19, U. H., at 8. Dr. GLOVER.
2. Algebra.—A review of elementary algebra through quadratics, preparatory to the University. Text-book: Charles Smith's Elementary Algebra, revised by Stringham. Room 19, U. H., at 9. Mr. HALL.
3. Trigonometry and Algebra. Double Course.—This course will be equivalent to Course 1a of the first semester's work, and corresponding credit (three-fifths) will be given. There will be five recitations a week in each subject. Text-books: Loney's Trigonometry and Charles Smith's Treatise on Algebra. Room 6, T. H., at 9 and 10. Mr. LYMAN.

[The algebra of this course with the analytical geometry of Course 4, below, will be equivalent to Course 1 of the first semester's work, and four-fifths credit will be given].

4. Analytical Geometry.—An elementary course in plane analytical geometry. Text-book: Charles Smith's Conic Sections. Room 19, U. H., at 11. Mr. HALL.

[See note to Course 3].

*In addition to the work announced above a course will be given in practical economic problems by Professor Taylor and Dr. Dixon to include such subjects as the transportation problem, speculative trading, foreign exchange, socialism and the money question. The tariff question will be treated with special reference to the Dingley bill. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 8.

5. Theory of Equations.—A course in modern higher algebra. Text-book: Burnside and Panton's Theory of Equations. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 10. Mr. HALL.
6. Elementary Mechanics.—Text-book: Ziwet's Theoretical Mechanics, Parts I and II. Two-fifths credit, Room 19, U. H., at 1. Dr. GLOVER.
7. Projective Geometry.—Lectures on the synthetic geometry of the range, pencil, and conic sections. Cremona's Projective Geometry is recommended as a book of reference. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 2. Dr. GLOVER.
8. Lectures on the Theory of Infinite Series.—In this course the more important theories concerning the properties of infinite series will be reviewed. The course will also include a discussion of the elementary and logarithmic tests for convergency, tests for uniform convergency, differentiation and integration of series, and, if time permits, double series will be considered. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 3. Dr. GLOVER.
[Of Courses 7 and 8 but one will be given, that for which the larger number of students apply.]
9. Geometry.—This course is designed for teachers. Special attention will be given to the history of the subject, methods of presentation, correlation with algebra, and criticism of various treatises. Text-book: Beman and Smith's Plane and Solid Geometry. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 8. Professor BEMAN.
[If desired by the class one hour each week will be devoted to a talk on the teaching of algebra.]
10. Calculus.—Text-book: Osborne's Differential and Integral Calculus. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 9. Professor BEMAN.
11. Differential Equations.—Text-book: Johnson's Differential Equations. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 10. Professor BEMAN.

PHYSICS.

All work in Physics will be given in the Physical Laboratory. A laboratory fee of $3.00 will be charged for every person taking Course 3 or 4.

1. Physics for Admission to the University.—Text-book: Carhart and Chute's Physics. At 10. Dr. GUTHE.
2. General Physics. Teachers' Course. Lectures and Recitations.—This course will cover the whole field of physics as treated in the current texts, special stress being laid upon the full treatment of the more difficult topics, and upon the progress made in recent years. Other features of the course will be: the application of the principles to numerous problems, and the exhibition and explanation of lecture-table apparatus. At 11. Dr. GUTHE.

3. Laboratory Physics.—This course is designed to meet the needs of teachers, both of those who wish to introduce laboratory methods and of those who wish to carry forward their experimental work. In accordance with the established opinion that physics is a matter of measurement, the course will deal with exact quantitative measurements, extending as completely as time will admit over mechanics, sound, heat, light, and electricity, embracing the determination of the more important constants. It is the aim to make the course as useful as possible to teachers of physics, and in furtherance of this idea, conferences will be held to devise and discuss plans for laboratory equipment and work. Two-hour sessions. From 9 to 11. Dr. ST. JOHN.

CHEMISTRY.

The chemical laboratory provides for classes in general, analytical, and organic chemistry, and in metallurgy. Opportunity is also given for original research in the several branches of chemical science. There are separate work-rooms for general chemistry, qualitative analysis, quantitative analysis, iron and steel analysis, organic preparations, organic analysis, molecular weight determinations, and original research. There are also rooms for balances and other instruments of precision.

Students will be accorded the full privileges of the laboratory each day from 8 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m. Material for all kinds of chemical work will be furnished to the student at cost. The expense for a student working each afternoon or each forenoon will be from $1.00 to $1.75 per week, depending upon the course, and the care and economy of the student. Each student will be provided with a working desk, and his laboratory work will be independent of that of other students and under the personal supervision of the instructor. The following courses are offered:

1. General Inorganic Chemistry.—Lectures daily at 8 o'clock. Recitations three times a week at hours to be arranged with the instructor. Three-fifths credit. Mr. HIGLEY.

This course, which is suitable for teachers, will be fully illustrated by experiments, many of them involving the use of quantitative methods.

Courses 1 and 2a together are equivalent to the requirements in General Chemistry in the Departments of Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy.

2. Laboratory Work in General Inorganic Chemistry.—Course 2 may be elected as 2a, three-fifths; 2b, four-fifths; 2c, five-fifths; 2d, six-fifths. Course 2 must be accompanied by Course 1, or preceded by the equivalent of it. Any of the courses under 2 can be taken to good advantage by teachers who have not had similar work. Mr. LICHTY.

2. Qualitative Analysis.—Inorganic reactions and analysis. Recitations daily. Laboratory work daily from 4 to 6 hours. May be elected as four, five, or six-fifths credit. It may be taken as a substitute for required qualitative chemistry in the Engineering, Medical, and Dental Departments. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
4. Beginning Quantitative Analysis.—This course presupposes a good knowledge of qualitative analysis, and is intended to give a thorough knowledge of the principles on which quantitative determinations are based, with practice in the laboratory on the most important methods used in quantitative analysis. The work will consist of lectures and recitations, to be accompanied by laboratory work involving simple gravimetric determinations of a single element. Volumetric analysis by acidimetry and alkali-metry, oxidation and reduction, and the gravimetric separation of two or more elements. Four to six-fifths credit. Professor E. D. CAMPBELL or Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
5. Inorganic Preparations.—Laboratory work.
This course may be elected as 5a, 5b, 5c, or 5d, as under Course 2. It is intended for students and teachers who have taken Courses 1 and 2. Mr. LICHTY.
6. Organic Chemistry.—Lectures and recitations daily. At 8. Room C. Two-fifths credit. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
This course is designed to meet the needs of teachers of chemistry in the High Schools, who have not had opportunity for the study of organic chemistry; it should be accompanied by a course in organic preparations. It may also be elected by dental students as a substitute for their required course in this subject. Medical students may take this course and a two-fifths laboratory course in organic preparations as a substitute for their required work in this subject.
7. Organic Preparations.—Laboratory work daily with reference reading and quiz. Two to six-fifths credit with corresponding periods of laboratory work. For students beginning organic chemistry this must be accompanied by Course 6. Students who have had considerable organic chemistry may elect this as a research course. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
8. Methods of Determining Molecular Weights.—This course may be elected as follows:
 - 8a. Laboratory work ten hours per week, taken between 2 and 5 p. m. Two-fifths credit.
 - 8b. Laboratory work fifteen hours per week. Three-fifths credit. Mr. LICHTY.

Courses in the use of the spectroscope and the polariscope will be given if demanded.

9. Advanced Quantitative Analysis.—This course is for those who have a thorough training in elementary quantitative analysis. The laboratory work may be taken either in general advanced quantitative analysis, involving analysis of some more difficult inorganic substances, or it may be confined to technical methods for the analysis of metallurgical products. For those who are qualified, research work in analytical methods will be given. Four or six-fifths credit. Professor E. D. CAMPBELL.
10. Organic Analysis.—Laboratory work and reference reading. Elementary analysis; the determination of alkaloids; the estimation of fats; water analysis. Hours, credit, and work to be arranged. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
11. Research Work in General Chemistry.—Hours and credit arranged with the instructors. Mr. HIGLEY and Mr. LICHTY.

ZOOLOGY.

1. General Course.—A study of typical species of animals with reference to structure, function, development, and relationship. Two-fifths credit. Lectures M., W., F., at 8; laboratory work 12 hours a week, forenoons. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Mr. JOHNSTON and Miss BUTLER.

The laboratory work in this course may be extended to meet the wishes of the individual student. University students desiring credit on the zoölogical part of Course 1 in General Biology should elect this as a three-fifths course; their work will be specially arranged.

2. The Structure and Development of a Typical Vertebrate (the Frog).—Two-fifths credit. Lectures M., W., F., at 11; laboratory work 12 hours a week, at hours to be arranged. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Mr. JOHNSTON and Miss BUTLER.

This course may be elected by University students as a prerequisite for the advanced vertebrate work.

3. Teachers' Course.—This course may be elected as:
 - a. Work on Local Fauna.—Field and laboratory work in collecting and identifying specimens of the more important groups of animals, and text-book work. Field trips will be made Saturday mornings and at other times to be arranged; recitations and laboratory work afternoons so far as possible. Amount of work and credit to be arranged. Mr. JOHNSTON.
 - b. Technique.—A course in the most reliable methods of killing, preserving, and preparing for microscopic study those forms most commonly used for laboratory work. Hours to be arranged. Mr. JOHNSTON and Miss BUTLER.

This course is especially designed to give High School teachers the training they need, on the one hand for the natural history work, and on the other hand for the laboratory work in biology in the High Schools. The course will be suitable also for University students who have had some work in zoölogy.

Teachers who wish to give all or the greater part of their time to zoölogy will be able to combine any two of the above courses.

BOTANY.

1. Morphology and Physiology of Phanerogams.—The work will deal with the form and structure of flowering plants, with special reference to function, or physiology. The processes in physiology will be demonstrated by simple experiments. Two-fifths credit. Lectures Tu., Th., at 1. Laboratory work 8 hours per week, in the afternoon. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Mr. POLLOCK.
2. Algæ and Fungi.—Special attention will be given to the common fresh water algæ of our ponds and streams. The work on fungi will include the preparation of culture media, and the cultivation of fungi in the laboratory, and their study in their natural habitat. Four-fifths credit. Lectures M., W., F., at 1. Laboratory work 18 hours per week, preferably in the afternoon. Laboratory fee, $4.00. Mr. POLLOCK.
3. Vegetable Histology.—3a two-fifths, 3b four-fifths credit. In this course a study will be made of the minute structure of plants, the differentiation of tissues, methods of embedding, section cutting, staining, and mounting. Nine hours laboratory work per week will be required for 3a, 18 for 3b. Reading will be assigned and quizzes given on both reading and laboratory work. Laboratory fee, $2.00 or $4.00. Mr. POLLOCK.

All work in botany will be given in the botanical laboratory.

DRAWING.

MR. WRENTMORE AND MR. GOULDING.

1. Mechanical Drawing.—Two-fifths credit. From 8 to 10.
2. Freehand, Perspective, Pen and Ink.—Three-fifths credit. From 8 to 11.
3. Descriptive Geometry.—Three-fifths credit. At 10. Attendance required two consecutive hours per day.
4. Shades, Shadows, and Perspective.—Three-fifths credit. From 8 to 10.
5. Stereotomy.—Two-fifths credit. At 11.
6. Lettering and Machine Sketching.—Three-fifths credit. From 8 to 11.

7. Freehand Lettering.—Two-fifths credit. From 9 to 11.
8. Architectural and Water Color Drawing.—Two-fifths credit. From 9 to 11.

ENGINEERING.

1. Elements of Mechanism.—Two-fifths or three-fifths credit. At 9.
Lectures daily. Drawing, arranged with instructor. Mr. WRENTMORE.
2. Graphical Analysis of Structures.—Two-fifths credit. At 10 Mr. WRENTMORE.

HISTOLOGY.

1. Vertebrate Histology.—In this course the student is given some 150 sections, embracing preparations of the elementary tissues, of the brain and spinal cord, and of the organs. These sections become the property of the student. Teachers of physiology in secondary schools will find a course of this nature very helpful to the proper understanding of the subject. Laboratory work every afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30. Three-fifths credit. This course corresponds to the laboratory work of Course 6 or 7, animal morphology, or to the required laboratory work of medical students. Laboratory fee, $7.00. Assistant Professor HUBER and Mr. BALDWIN.
2. Histological Technique.—The methods of hardening, staining, injecting, embedding, and section cutting will be explained, and the students will be required to make preparations according to the methods described. Laboratory work every afternoon from 1:30 to 4:30. Three-fifths credit. Laboratory fee, $7.00. Assistant Professor HUBER.

BACTERIOLOGY AND PHYSIOLOGICAL CHEMISTRY.

The laboratory fees will vary from $10.00 to $15.00, depending on the care and economy of the student.

1. Physiological Chemistry.—Six-fifths credit. Lectures or quiz every day. Laboratory work daily from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 5. Mr. BLISS.

Students taking this course for credit toward a university degree must pass an examination in the subject in October to Professor Novy.

This course is the same as that required of Sophomores in the Medical Department. It must be preceded by the courses in inorganic, qualitative, and organic chemistry required of Freshmen in the Medical Department, or by the equivalent of those courses.

The student begins with the study of the composition, reactions, and decomposition products of fats, carbohydrates, and proteids. He thus becomes familiar with the tests employed for their recognition and the methods used for their isolation—extraction, dialysis, precipitation, etc. The saliva and gastric and pancreatic juices are studied in detail, the chemical composition, and more especially the action of the different ferments on foodstuffs, are considered, and comparisons of these are made.

The bile is next taken up, special attention being given to the methods of testing for bile acids and bile pigments in urine, and the examination of bile stones. Full attention is given to the study of the composition and properties of blood, and the examination of blood-stains by chemical, microscopical, and spectroscopic methods.

Each student must examine gastric juice for the presence of hydrochloric and lactic acids, and pepsin, and must also examine a blood-stained article.

The study of normal urine is taken up. Urea, uric acid, hippuric acid, and some other compounds are prepared synthetically and also isolated from urine; their chemical properties and reactions are studied carefully, as well as those of the sulphur compounds, aromatic bodies, and other constituents of normal urine. The tests for the recognition of pathological constituents, as leucin, tyrosin, bile acids, and pigments, blood, pus, albumin, sugar, etc., are applied to pure solutions of these substances and also to pathological urines. Urinary sediments are examined chemically and microscopically for casts, blood, pus, oxalates, urates, etc.

Thorough drill is given in quantitative analysis; each student becomes familiar with quantitative methods and manipulation, and with the balance and the various forms of measuring apparatus. Each is required to make twenty determinations, by volumetric and gravimetric methods, of urea, sugar, albumin, uric acid, phosphates, etc. A complete chemical analysis of milk and of urine is made. At the end of the course each is required to make a careful examination of twenty-five samples of urine, containing pathological constituents.

2. Bacteriology.—Lecture or quiz every day. Laboratory work daily from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 5. Six-fifths credit.

This course is the same as that required of medical students. Those taking it for credit toward a University degree will be required to pass an examination in October to Professor NOVY. Dr. PERKINS.

The object of this course is to make the student familiar with the methods of detection, isolation, and identification of the pathogenic micro-organisms. Lectures are given on the forms of bacteria, their classification, structure, multiplication and reproduction, their requirements of growth, and their chemical products. The principles of sterilization and disinfection are brought out, and special emphasis is given to their practical application. The latter half of the course deals exclusively with pathogenic organisms. The way in which bacteria produce disease, their attenuation, and the production of immunity are carefully explained. The sources of infection and methods of prevention are given, together with the general properties of the specific organisms.

The laboratory work begins with the preparation of the various culture media and the growth of certain non-pathogenic germs on these media. After the technique of the work is understood, pathogenic germs are grown on gelatin, agar potatoes, etc.; animals are inoculated, the effects observed, postmortem examinations made, and the germs isolated and identified.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

DEPARTMENT OF LAW

THIRD ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT

SUMMER SCHOOL, 1897

OPENS JULY 5 AND ENDS AUGUST 27.

FACULTY OF THE SUMMER SCHOOL OF LAW.

BRADLEY M. THOMPSON, M.S., LL.B.,
Executive Chairman,

JEROME C. KNOWLTON, A.B., LL.B.

HORACE L. WILGUS, M.S.

ELIAS F. JOHNSON, B.S., LL.M., Secretary.

JOHN W. DWYER, LL.M.

THOMAS W. HUGHES, LL.M.

The Department of Law.

For the summer of 1897, commencing July 5th, and continuing for eight weeks, members of the Faculty of the Department of Law will offer the following courses of instruction. The work will consist of a thorough review of the leading topics of the law, designed especially to aid those who desire to review work already done for the purpose of preparing them to take examinations for admission to the bar, or who wish to secure advanced standing in the regular course of this or other law schools, or who wish to make up back work.

While this review is the primary object of the courses, many subjects will be treated in such a way as to make them desirable for those who wish a knowledge of certain subjects of the law as a part of a liberal education. For these, we recommend particularly the work in Elementary Law, Contracts, Bills and Notes, and Personal Property.

The work will consist of daily recitations from text-books and of lectures.

LIBRARIES.

The students will be entitled to the free use of the Law Library, which contains eleven thousand four hundred and sixty-five volumes, and includes the reports of every state in the Union, the reports of the Federal courts, and a very excellent collection of the English, Irish, and Canadian reports. The Library also contains duplicate copies of all the leading text-books upon the various topics of the law. In addition to reports and text-books, the Library is also well supplied with sets of leading cases and legal periodicals.

The Law Library will be open for consultation by the students from 8 A. M. until 10 P. M. Students are not permitted to take books from the building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains over seventy-four thousand volumes and fifteen thousand pamphlets, is also open to use by the students of the Summer School of Law.

DIRECTIONS TO CANDIDATES FOR ADMISSION.

Each applicant for admission to the Summer School of Law should first apply to the Secretary of the Law School, register with him as a student in such school and indicate the course or courses which he desires to take, and receive, from the Secretary, a ticket, directed to the Treasurer of the University, indicating the course or courses selected and the amount to be paid, which ticket he shall then present to the Treasurer of the University and pay his fees to the said Treasurer. Upon presenting the receipt of the Treasurer to the Secretary, showing that the required fees have been paid, he is then entitled to be enrolled as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

While no examinations for admission will be held, it is desired and expected that each applicant will present some evidence showing that he can pursue the work to his advantage, and such as will enable the Faculty to give proper advice as to subjects to be selected, etc.

TUITION FEES.

The fees will be as follows:

1. For a course covering ten hours, - - - $ 4.00
2. For a course covering fifteen hours, - - - 6.00
3. For a course covering twenty hours, - - - 8.00
4. For a course covering one hundred hours or more, 35.00

But no student will be permitted to take more than twenty hours work per week without special permission of the Faculty.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 12,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is at the junction of the great Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, fitted up with all the facilities for athletic exercises that could be desired.

The cost of living is small. Rooms may be had at from $1.00 to $2.00 per week and board from $2.00 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT FOR WORK DONE.

Students who attend the Summer School and take any of the regular courses will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. No credit in the regular three years course in the Law Department will be given for work done in the Summer School; but the rules of admission to the regular course will be so far modified in favor of those who take the work in the Summer School as to permit those who complete not less than 125 hours work therein, upon furnishing to the Dean at the opening of the regular course in October, 1896, a certificate showing that they have studied law twelve months, (ten under the instruction of a practicing attorney, and two in the Summer School), to take the examination for admission to the second year of the regular course; and likewise those who do a like amount of work in the Summer School, and who furnish a certificate showing that they have studied law 26 months, (twenty-four with a practicing attorney, and two in the Summer School), will be permitted to take the examinations for admission to the Senior year of the regular course.

METHODS OF INSTRUCTION.

The course of instruction covers eight weeks, and each student is expected to take three hours classroom work per day, but may take more by permission of the Faculty. Realizing that all methods of instruction have in them elements of good, the Faculty endeavor to embrace in the course what, in their judgment, are the best features of all. They combine the lecture, the text-book, and the case system, keeping in view the training of the student for the practical work of his profession. Examination will be held upon each subject when closed.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The text-books used, the times when the various subjects will be given, and the members of the Faculty having charge of them are as follows:

Elementary Law.—Blackstone, Book I, and parts of III and IV. July 26–August 6. Mr. JOHNSON.

Elementary Real Property.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. 15 hours, August 13–27. Mr. JOHNSON.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. 20 hours, July 5–16. Prof. KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Lectures and Text-book. 10 hours, July 26–August 6. Mr. HUGHES.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. 15 hours, July 5–13. Prof. WILGUS.

Domestic Relations.—Browne's Domestic Relations. 15 hours, August 9–27. Mr. HUGHES.

Personal Property.—Smith's Personal Property. 15 hours, August 9–27. Mr. DWYER.

Common Law Pleading.—Stephen's Common Law Pleading. 20 hours, July 19–August 6. Mr. DWYER.

Agency.—Huffcut's Agency. 10 hours, July 24–August 6. Mr. JOHNSON.

- Partnership.*—Mechem's Elements. 10 hours, July 16-August 27. Mr. HUGHES.
- Bailments.*—Lectures. 10 hours, July 9-23. Prof. KNOWLTON.
- Bills and Notes.*—Johnson's Elements. 15 hours, August 9-27. Mr. JOHNSON.
- Real Property, Fixtures, etc.*—Lectures. 15 hours, July 5-23. Prof. THOMPSON.
- Equity Jurisprudence.*—Lectures. 15 hours, July 5-23. Prof. THOMPSON.
- Equity Pleading.*—Thompson's Equity Pleading. 15 hours, August 9-29. Mr. DWYER.
- Evidence.*—Reynold's Theory of Esidence. 15 hours, July 26-August 13. Mr. HUGHES.
- Corporations.*—15 hours, July 19-August 6. Prof. WILGUS.

SCHEDULE OF WORK.

For a statement showing the particular time when instruction will be given upon each subject, the number of hours devoted to each, and the name of the instructor in charge of the same as well as the text-book used, reference is made to the following schedule:

The first eight subjects comprise a review of the first year, and the remainder a review of the leading subjects of the second year in the regular course in the Department of Law. The course will be divided into two classes—one of the first year's subjects, and one of the second year subjects,—of about 125 hours each,—or three hours of class-room work per day for each class during the eight weeks. These classes will be arranged so there will be no conflict of subjects, and students may elect such subjects as they desire without limitation except no one will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week without special permission of the faculty. Students will be allowed to elect in the Summer School of the Literary Department, provided it does not interfere with their work in this department, by paying the necessary fee.

REGULAR SCHOOL OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1897-98 will open on Friday, October 1, 1897, and will continue until the 30th day of June, 1898. The course covers three years of instruction of nine months each. The work is not confined to anyone system. The faculty endeavor to embrace in the course what, in their judgment, are the best features of all; keeping in mind the training of the student for the practical work of his profession. The course of instruction covers the following subjects: Elementary Law, Elementary Real Property, Contracts, Criminal Law and Procedure, Torts, Domestic Relations, Personal Property, Common Law Pleading, Evidence, Agency, Partnership, Bills and Notes, Bailments and Carriers, Code Pleading, Equity Pleading, Real Property, Equity Jurisprudence, Corporations, Constitutional Law, Federal Jurisprudence, Damages, Extraordinary Legal Remedies, Wills, Private International Law, Conveyancing Suretyship and Mortgages, Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors and the Science of Jurisprudence.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, ten in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. The non-resident members, four in number, are engaged in practice, but meet their classes each week on designated days. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Comparative Constitutional Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, Admiralty Law, Medical Jurisprudence, Injunctions and Receivers, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law and Patent Law. There are fourteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1896-97) nearly six hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular courses will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

During the continuance of the Summer School of Law the following lectures and entertainments will be given which will be free to all the students of the Summer Schools:

The Judicial System of the Jews,

PROFESSOR B. M. THOMPSON.

The Trial of Jesus, from a Lawyer's Standpoint,

PROFESSOR J. C. KNOWLTON.

Magna Charta,

PROFESSOR H. L. WILGUS.

For further announcement of free lectures to be given under the auspices of the Summer School, see page 7.

Those who desire further information concerning this Department may address letters of inquiry to E. F. Johnson, Secretary of the Summer School of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

SUMMER SCHOOL

GENERAL STATEMENT.

The annual session of THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN SUMMER SCHOOL will begin Wednesday, July 6, and will close Thursday, August 18.

The courses offered may be briefly classified as follows:

Preparatory Courses.—A number of courses have been arranged for the purpose of aiding those who may for any reason wish to review their preparatory studies before entering upon the regular University work. Courses in Rhetoric, Literature, Chemistry, Physics, Botany, Algebra, Geometry, and Zoölogy will be given covering the ground required for admission to the University and by the State Board of Examiners for a State teacher's certificate.

Special Courses for Teachers.—In almost all lines of work special courses are offered which are designed to aid those who teach, or wish to prepare to teach in secondary schools. A number of special lectures bearing on the history and teaching of several branches taught in the Summer School, as Latin, English, Mathematics, Physics, Botany, and others, will be given by members of the Faculty. These lectures will be free to all members of the Summer School.

Advanced Courses.—University students and others who during the summer wish to carry on work in a special line, or to do work that will count toward a degree, will find a large number of courses from which to choose.

In addition to the courses offered, the instructors will be glad to give assistance to those attending the Summer School in the line of directing their work and outlining courses of reading in the Library. Each student can do as much as he is able to do. He will not be held back by others. The classes are in general small, so that a large amount of individual work can be done.

Every course announced in this circular will be given without regard to the number of students applying for it.

Teachers and others expecting to enroll in the Summer School are earnestly advised to confer freely with the instructors in charge of the work. This conference can be carried on by correspondence. Letters of inquiry may be directed to the instructors at their addresses as given above.

REGISTRATION.

Students will register with the Chairman of the Executive Committee in the Dean's office and pay their fees to the Treasurer. The laboratory fees, which are specified below in connection with the description of courses, must also be paid to the Treasurer.

TUITION.

| | | | | | | | |
|------------------------------------|---|---|---|---|---|---|------|
| One Course, | - | - | - | - | - | - | $15 |
| Two courses by the same student, | - | - | - | - | - | - | $25 |
| Three courses by the same student, | - | - | - | - | - | - | $30 |

The maximum tuition fee is $30. A full course consists of thirty lessons, one hour a day, five days in the week for six weeks. All fees must be paid the first week of the student's attendance.

CREDIT IN THE UNIVERSITY.

Credit will be given to students who are regularly matriculated in the University, subject to the following rule:

No student shall receive more than six hours credit for work done during one session.

The restriction that not more than twelve hours credit may be secured in the Summer School to count toward a degree has been removed.

The credit that will be given for the several courses announced below is mentioned in the description of these courses. If such mention be wanting, no credit will be given.

LIBRARY ADVANTAGES.

THE GENERAL LIBRARY, containing about 95,000 volumes, 16,000 unbound pamphlets, and 1,000 maps, will be open to all students of the Summer School from 8 a. m. till 5 p. m. each day during the session. During the hours when the library is closed regular students of the school will, subject to certain rules, be allowed to take books to their rooms.

Four hundred and fifty periodicals are taken.

THE LABORATORIES.

In the several laboratories of the University opportunities are provided for practical instruction in physics, chemistry, zoölogy, psychology, botany, engineering, and histology.

THE MUSEUM.

The University Museums contain collections illustrative of natural history, the industrial arts, chemistry, materia medica, anatomy, archæology, ethnology, the fine arts, and history, arranged in such a way as to render them accessible both to students and to visitors.

The museum building contains the collections in natural history, the industrial arts, archæology and ethnology, and the Chinese exhibit. The collections of works of art, including historical medallions and coins, are in the art gallery.

LIVING EXPENSES.

The cost of board and rooms will vary from $3.00 to $5.00 a week, according to location and manner of living.

COURSE OF FREE LECTURES.

A course of free lectures by prominent educators will be given in connection with the school.

EXAMINATIONS.

All students desiring credit for work done in the Summer School will be required to pass an examination at the close of the term according to the following schedule:

| Time of Recitation. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
|---------------------------------|-------------------|------------------|--------------------|------------------|
| Time of Examination. | Wednesday 8-10 | Wednesday 2-4 | Wednesday 10-12 | Wednesday 4-6 |
| Time of Recitation. | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |
| Time of Examination. | Thursday 8-10 | Thursday 2-4 | Thursday 10-12 | Thursday 4-6 |

ANNOUNCEMENT OF COURSES.

JULY 6—AUGUST 18.

The recitation hours indicated in connection with the courses announced below will be changed in case of conflicts.

GREEK.

1. Preparatory Greek. Double Course.—(For those who have never studied the language.) The aim of this course will be to complete the usual “first lessons.” Students who successfully complete the work of this course will be able, by supplementary study, to enter Course 2 (Homer) in the University the second semester of the college year, 1897–98. Those intending to elect the course should purchase before the beginning of the session, White’s First Greek Book, published (in 1896) by Ginn & Co., and prepare carefully pages 1–6, repeatedly pronouncing aloud the Greek sentences on pages 206–213. It is recommended that students electing this course undertake no other work during the Summer School session. Two recitations daily, at 9 a. m. and another hour to be arranged. Room 3, T. H. Dr. DENNISON.
2. Rapid Reading of Easy Greek: Selections from Xenophon’s Hellenica and Lucian. Two-fifths credit. Room 3, T. H., at 8. Dr. DENNISON.

LATIN.

1. Preparatory Latin:
 - a. Latin Writing.—Translation of English into Latin, with collateral reading of Latin and a study of the grammar. This course will be introductory to Course 11 in the University. Room E, U. H., at 10. Professor ROLFE.
 - b. The Lives of Nepos.—Interpretation of the text. Especial attention will be given to reading in Latin. Room 20, U. H., at 8. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
 - c. Virgil’s Aeneid.—Interpretation of the text with a study of prosody. This course will be made to meet the demands of students preparing for college, but special instruction without extra charge will be given teachers in preparatory schools or those planning to teach, to acquaint them with the literature of the subject. Room E, U. H., at 11. Professor ROLFE.

These courses will be accepted as partial equivalents for entrance to the University. The amount of credit allowed for them will depend upon the amount of work accomplished.

2. Rapid Reading of Selections from Livy and Martial.—Room 20, U. H., at 9. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
3. Introduction to Roman Political Institutions.—Lectures. This course is designed to supplement the preparation of teachers of history and of Cicero in the preparatory schools, and to give students of the University preparation for work in Roman historical authors. Room 20, U. H., at 11. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
4. Historical Proseminary.—A study of historical subjects from the sources. Septimius Severus and his successors. Room 20, U. H., at 10. Two-fifths credit. Assistant Professor DRAKE.
5. Comparative Grammar of Greek and Latin.—This course is intended as an introduction to the study of the phonology, etymology, morphology, and syntax of the classical languages, with special direction of the student's reading along lines suggested by the lectures. The course may appropriately be taken by teachers of Latin and Greek, and by those intending to take the teachers' courses in the University. The ability to read French and German is very desirable, although not absolutely necessary. Room E, U. H., at 8. Two-fifths credit. Professor ROLFE.

FRENCH.

1. Beginners' Course.—Text-book: Chardenal's Complete French Course. The work will cover the main points in French grammar, and include exercises in pronunciation, composition, and translation. Room 12, T. H., at 8. Mr. EFFINGER.
2. French Composition.—An advanced course for those who desire to continue the study of French grammar and composition. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 9. Mr. EFFINGER.
3. Scientific Prose.—A course in rapid reading for Engineering students and others who desire facility in translation. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 10. Mr. EFFINGER.
4. Classic French Dramas.—The representative plays of Corneille, Molière, and Racine, will be translated and the work supplemented by informal lectures on the development of the French drama during the 17th century. Two-fifths credit. Room 12, T. H., at 11. Mr. EFFINGER.

GERMAN.

1. Reading of Modern Prose.—The texts to be read will be selected from the modern writers of fiction and history, and the chief object will be the acquisition of a reading knowledge of narrative and historical German prose; much practice will be given in reading at sight. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 8. Dr. MENSEL.

2. German Grammar.—Systematic course in German syntax with daily exercises in writing German, both translation and original essays, and in other work leading to a practical mastery of the language. The work will be especially adapted for teachers. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 9. Dr. MENSEL.
3. Classic Drama.—Study of the representative dramas of Lessing, Goethe, or Schiller (choice to be made by class), with lectures and outside reading on the life of the poet and on the history of German literature of the period. Two-fifths credit. Room B, U. H., at 10. Dr. MENSEL.

ENGLISH PHILOLOGY AND GENERAL LINGUISTICS.

1. Old English (Anglo-Saxon).—For beginners. Room L, U. H., at 9. Two-fifths credit. Professor HEMPL.
2. English Grammar on an Historical Basis.—The course will consist of a study of the elements of English phonology, morphology, and etymology, with the aid of Sweet's Primer of Historical English Grammar, and of informal lectures on the chief principles of syntax and on language in general. Room L, U. H., at 10. Two-fifths credit. Professor HEMPL.

A course in Middle English, with special reference to Chaucer, will be given provided there is sufficient demand for it. Two-fifths credit.

ENGLISH AND RHETORIC.

ENGLISH LITERATURE.

1. The Teaching of English Literature.—A review of Brooke's English Literature, with assigned readings for each period, and discussions. Considerable time will be given to Shakespeare, and one play will be read critically in class. Two-fifths credit. Room 10, T. H., at 4. Professor DEMMON.
2. American Literature.—An outline of the subject, with assigned readings from the principal authors, and discussions. Two-fifths credit. Room 10, T. H., at 5. Professor DEMMON.

While either one of the courses may be taken without the other, there will be an advantage in taking them together for purposes of comparative study between British and American authors. The University Library offers excellent facilities for these courses, and students can profitably spend their entire time upon them. While the pedagogical side is emphasized, they will still be found suitable for all who wish to go over these subjects.

RHETORIC AND ENGLISH COMPOSITION.

1. Paragraph-Writing.—Text-book: Scott and Denney's Paragraph-Writing. Two-fifths credit. Room L, U. H., at 9. Mr. GRAY.
2. Theme-Writing.—Two-fifths credit. Room L, U. H., at 10. Mr. GRAY.

[Courses 1 and 2 are the equivalent of Courses 1 and 1a in the Annual Announcement.]

3. Analysis of English Prose.—Text-book: Genung's Rhetorical Analysis. Two-fifths credit. Room 4, U. H., at 2. Professor SCOTT.

In this course the essential principles of rhetoric are illustrated and verified by an examination of certain prose masterpieces. The authors studied will be De Quincey, Huxley, Hawthorne, Arnold, Macaulay, Morley, Green, Shorthouse, and Sir Walter Scott. The following books are recommended for collateral reading: Lewes's Principles of Success in Literature, Spencer's Philosophy of Style, Bates's Talks on Writing English, Minto's Manual of English Prose, Wendell's English Composition, Genung's Practical Rhetoric.

4. Teachers' Course: Methods of Teaching Rhetoric and English Composition.—Lectures, assigned readings, and discussions. Two-fifths credit. Room 4, U. H., at 3. Professor SCOTT.

No text-book will be used in this course, but reference will be made to a considerable number of books and articles dealing with composition in its pedagogical aspects. A bibliography of these references will be furnished to the student free at the beginning of the course, or, for two cents postage, will be sent in advance to any one who may care to apply for it. It is recommended that Courses 3 and 4 be taken together.

In addition to these courses, Professor Scott will give three lectures which will be free to all members of the school, upon the following subjects: 1. The Art of Essay-Correction; 2. Diseases of English Prose; 3. Verbal Antipathies.

ELOCUTION AND ORATORY.

1. Elocution.—Exercises in vocal culture, breathing, position, and technique of gesture; pronunciation and emphasis; the Rush and Delsarte philosophies, elements of quality and force of voice, with their applications. Two-fifths credit. Room 24, U. H., at 2. Professor EDWIN P. TRUEBLOOD.
2. Elocution.—Exercises in vocal culture continued; elements of pitch and time, with illustrations; study and application of the principles of action; delivery of short extracts from masterpieces of the orators. Two-fifths credit. Room 24, U. H., at 3. Professor EDWIN P. TRUEBLOOD.

PHILOSOPHY.

1. Logic.—The scope and subdivisions of logic; the more important traditional doctrines of Formal Logic, their historic origin, theoretical significance, and usefulness as helps in the practical business of thinking. Lectures and text-book: Minto. Two-fifths credit. Room 21, U. H., at 8. Dr. REBEC.
2. Introduction to General Psychology. Lectures, required reading, and discussions. This course will cover the field of psychology in outline with particular regard to attention, memory, and the other processes of pedagogical interest. Two-fifths credit. Room 21, U. H., at 8. Dr. PILLSBURY.
3. Introductory Laboratory Course.—Opportunity will be given to become acquainted with the problems of experimental psychology, with the more important methods of investigation, and with the practical manipulation of apparatus. Two-fifths credit. Room 18a, U. H., at 9. Dr. PILLSBURY.

THE SCIENCE AND ART OF TEACHING.

1. Ancient Education and Educational Thought.—The pedagogical ideas of Xenophon, Plato, Aristotle, Quintilian, Plutarch; their basis in classic pedagogical practice, and their relation to classic life and culture. A special attempt will be made to point out the permanent element in these ideas. Lectures and reading of illustrative passages. Students are expected to have in hand for collateral study Davidson's Aristotle and Ancient Educational Ideals. Two-fifths credit. Room 21, U. H., at 3. Dr. REBEC.

POLITICAL ECONOMY.

1. Elements of Political Economy.—Text-book and lectures. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 8. Dr. DIXON.

Students receiving credit for this course will be admitted to all courses in the University for which Course 2 is required; but the acceptance of such credit will debar them from receiving credit for either Course 1 or Course 2.

2. History of the Development of Industrial Society.—Lectures, quizzes, and reports on collateral reading. This course embraces a history of English industrial society from the eleventh century to the present time and is designed to show how modern industrial customs and rights came into existence. It is planned as a general introduction to further work in political economy. Students taking the combined Literary-Law Course may elect this work and apply the credit toward this degree. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 9. Dr. DIXON.

3. Industrial Development of the United States since the Civil War.—

This course will include a discussion of the development of the transportation industry, the agricultural problem, the industrial revolution of the southern states and their present depression, the growth in manufactures, with a discussion of America's competitive strength in foreign markets and a consideration of our present tariff policy and its probable future. Two-fifths credit. Room 11, T. H., at 10. Dr. DIXON.

MATHEMATICS.

In addition to the courses announced below a course of from three to six lectures bearing on the teaching and history of Mathematics will be given by members of the Mathematical Faculty. These lectures will be free to all members of the school.

1. Geometry.—A review of plane and solid geometry, preparatory to the University. Text-book: Beman and Smith's Plane and Solid Geometry. Room 19, U. H., at 8. Dr. GLOVER.
2. Elementary Algebra.—A review of elementary algebra through quadratics, preparatory to the University. Text-book: Hall and Knight's Elementary Algebra, revised by Sevenoak. Room 19, U. H., at 9. Mr. HALL.
3. Trigonometry and Algebra. Double Course.—This course will be equivalent to Course 1a of the first semester's work, and corresponding credit (three-fifths) will be given. There will be five recitations a week in each subject. Text-books: Loney's Trigonometry and Lyman, Hall, and Goddard's Algebra. Room 6, T. H., at 9 and 10. Mr. LYMAN.

[The algebra of this course with the analytical geometry of Course 4, below, will be equivalent to Course 1 of the first semester's work, and four-fifths credit will be given.]

4. Analytical Geometry.—An elementary course in plane analytical geometry. Text-book: Loney's Coordinate Geometry. Room 19, U. H., at 11. Mr. HALL.

[See note to course 3].

5. Theory of Equations.—A course in modern higher algebra. Text-book: Burnside and Panton's Theory of Equations. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 10. Mr. HALL.
6. Elementary Mechanics.—Text-book: Ziwet's Theoretical Mechanics, Parts I and II. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 1. Dr. GLOVER.
7. Projective Geometry. Lectures on the synthetic geometry of the range, pencil, and conic sections. Cremona's Projective Geometry is recommended as a book of reference. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 2. Dr. GLOVER.

8. Lectures on the Theory of Infinite Series.—In this course the more important theories concerning the properties of infinite series will be reviewed. The course will also include a discussion of the elementary and logarithmic tests for convergency, tests for uniform convergency, differentiation and integration of series, and, if time permits, double series will be considered. Two-fifths credit. Room 19, U. H., at 3. Dr. GLOVER.
9. Geometry.—This course is designed for teachers. Special attention will be given to the history of the subject, methods of presentation, correlation with algebra, and criticism of various treatises. Text-book: Beman and Smith's Plane and Solid Geometry. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 8. Professor BEMAN.
[If desired by the class one hour each week will be devoted to a talk on the teaching of algebra.]
10. Calculus.—Text-book: Osborne's Differential and Integral Calculus. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 9. Professor BEMAN.
12. Differential Equations.—Text-book: Johnson's Differential Equations. Two-fifths credit. Room 1, T. H., at 10. Professor BEMAN.

PHYSICS.

All work in Physics will be given in the Physical Laboratory. A laboratory fee will be charged for each person taking courses 3, 4, 5 or 6.

In addition to the regular class work some special lectures bearing upon the pedagogical features of the subject will be given. These lectures are free to all.

1. Physics for Admission to the University.—Text-book: Carhart and Chute's Physics. At 8. Assistant Professor REED.
2. General Physics. Teachers' Course.—Lectures and recitations. This course is designed for teachers of Physics in high schools and colleges. It will embrace a thorough review of the subject together with discussion and illustration of experimental apparatus and methods. The solution of physical problems will be a feature of the course. Teachers are urged to bring any text-books they may have on the subject. At 11. Assistant Professor REED.
3. Laboratory Work.—This course may be elected as 3a, three-fifths, or 3b, two-fifths credit, corresponding to the regular courses 3a, 3b, or 3c in physics, and is well adapted to the needs of teachers who wish to do laboratory work in their schools.

Teachers who wish to carry forward their experimental work or to take up special investigations will have a good opportunity to do so and will be allowed some freedom in selecting their line of work. In this case no credit will be allowed. Dr. GUTHE.

4. Electrochemistry.—This course deals with the modern theories of solution, electrolysis, and the voltaic cell. A short study of primary and secondary batteries will be included. Lectures during the first four weeks, laboratory work during the remainder of the course. Dr. GUTHE.
5. Sound.—Lectures three times a week. Laboratory work, two hours daily. This is the equivalent of Course 6 of the first semester. The lectures will cover the same ground as the reading in Violle's Acoustique together with parts of Everett's Vibratory Motion and Sound. A knowledge of Calculus is required. Mon., Wed., Fri., at 2. Three-fifths credit. Assistant Professor REED.
6. Elementary Lessons in Glass Blowing.—Easy manipulations in glass, such as bending, sealing, expanding or contracting the bore of glass tubes; welding, blowing bulbs, making and grinding glass stoppers, making U tubes, T tubes, thistle funnels, etc. Preparation and sealing in of electrodes, making eudiometers, electrolytic apparatus, and Geissler tubes. Persons desiring this course will do well to communicate with the instructor early. At 4. Assistant Professor REED.

CHEMISTRY.

The chemical laboratory provides for classes in general, analytical, and organic chemistry, and in metallurgy. Opportunity is also given for original research in the several branches of chemical science. There are separate work-rooms for general chemistry, qualitative analysis, quantitative analysis, iron and steel analysis, organic preparations, organic analysis, molecular weight determinations, and original research. There are also rooms for balances and other instruments of precision.

Students will be accorded the full privileges of the laboratory each day from 8 to 12 a. m. and from 2 to 5 p. m. Material for all kinds of chemical work will be furnished to the student at cost. The expense for a student working each afternoon or each forenoon will be from $1.00 to $1.75 per week, depending upon the course, and the care and economy of the student. Each student will be provided with a working desk, and his laboratory work will be independent of that of other students and under the personal supervision of the instructor.

The number of courses in the sense of this word as used in connection with tuition, page 6, to which a course in chemistry is equal, is determined by dividing the number of fifths of credit by two. Example: Course 2, elected as 2b, four-fifths credit, counts as two courses.

The following courses are offered:

1. General Inorganic Chemistry.—Lectures daily at 8 o'clock. Recitations three times a week at hours to be arranged with the instructor. Three-fifths credit. Mr. HIGLEY.

This course, which is suitable for teachers, will be fully illustrated by experiments, many of them involving the use of quantitative methods.

Courses 1 and 2a together are equivalent to the requirements in General Chemistry in the Departments of Dentistry and Pharmacy.

2. Laboratory Work in General Inorganic Chemistry.—Course 2 may be elected as 2a, three-fifths; 2b, four-fifths; 2c, five-fifths; 2d, six-fifths. Course 2 must be accompanied by Course 1, or preceded by the equivalent of it. Any of the courses under 2 can be taken to good advantage by teachers who have not had similar work. Mr. LICHTY.
3. Continuation of Course 2.—Laboratory work in advanced inorganic chemistry. This course may be elected as 3a, 3b, 3c, or 3d, as under Course 2. It is intended for students and teachers who have obtained at least five-fifths credit in Course 2. It is intended as an introduction to analytical chemistry. Mr. LICHTY.
4. Qualitative Analysis.—Inorganic reactions and analysis. Recitations daily. Laboratory work daily from 4 to 6 hours. May be elected as four, five, or six-fifths credit. It may be taken as a substitute for required qualitative chemistry in the Engineering, Medical, and Dental Departments. Mr. BROWN.
5. Beginning Quantitative Analysis—This course presupposes a good knowledge of qualitative analysis, and is intended to give a thorough knowledge of the principles on which quantitative determinations are based, with practice in the laboratory on the most important methods used in quantitative analysis. The work will consist of lectures and recitations, to be accompanied by laboratory work involving simple gravimetric determinations of a single element. Volumetric analysis by acidimetry and alkalimetry, oxidation and reduction, and the gravimetric separation of two or more elements. Four to six-fifths credit. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.
6. Organic Chemistry.—Lectures and recitations daily. At 8. Room C. Two-fifths credit. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.■
This course is designed to meet the needs of teachers of chemistry in the High Schools, who have not had opportunity for the study of organic chemistry; it should be accompanied by a course in organic preparations. It may also be elected by dental students as a substitute for their required course in this subject. Medical students may take this course and a two-fifths laboratory course in organic preparations as a substitute for their required work in this subject.■
7. Organic Preparations.—Laboratory work daily with reference reading and quiz. Two to six-fifths credit with corresponding periods of laboratory work. For students beginning organic chemistry this must be accompanied by Course 6. Students who have had considerable organic chemistry may elect this as a research course. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.

8. Elementary Physical Chemistry.—Lectures daily at an hour to be arranged. Two-fifths credit. Mr. HIGLEY.

9. Laboratory Work in Physical Chemistry.—Hours and credit to be arranged. Mr. HIGLEY.

Courses 8 and 9 are necessary for all students who wish to acquire more than an elementary knowledge of chemistry. The work in the laboratory covers the ground taken in the lectures; it includes the determination of molecular weights by all standard methods, the study of dissociation, etc. This course must be preceded by Courses 1 and 2 in General Chemistry, and by at least one course in University Physics.

10. Advanced Qualitative Analysis.—This course will be arranged to meet the needs of teachers of chemistry who have had Course 3. This course will be equivalent to 3a in the Announcement for 1897-98. Four-fifths to six-fifths credit. Mr. BROWN.

11. Spectroscopic Analysis.—Laboratory work. This course must be preceded by Courses 1, 2, and 3. Hours and credit to be arranged. Mr. LICHTY.

12. Organic Analysis.—Laboratory work and reference reading. Elementary analysis; the determination of alkaloids; the estimation of fats, oils, starches, sugars, etc.; water analysis. Hours, credit, and work to be arranged. Mr. TROWBRIDGE.

13. Research Work in Qualitative Chemistry.—Hours, credit, and work to be arranged. Mr. BROWN.

BACTERIOLOGY AND PHYSIOLOGICAL CHEMISTRY.

The laboratory fees will vary from $10.00 to $15.00, depending on the care and economy of the student. This fee is in addition to the tuition fee of $30.00.

1. Physiological Chemistry.—Six-fifths credit. Lecture or quiz every day. Laboratory work daily from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 5. Mr. BLISS

Students taking this course for credit toward a University degree must pass an examination at the end of the course submitted by Professor NOVY.

This course is the same as that required of Sophomores in the Medical Department. It must be preceded by the courses in inorganic, qualitative, and organic chemistry required of Freshmen in the Medical Department, or by the equivalent of those courses.

The student begins with the study of the composition, reactions, and decomposition products of fats, carbohydrates, and proteids. He thus becomes familiar with the tests employed for their recognition and the methods used for their isolation—extraction, dialysis, precipitation, etc. The saliva and gastric and pancreatic juices are studied in detail, the chemical composition, and more especially the action of the different ferments on foodstuffs, are considered, and comparisons of these are made.

The bile is next taken up, special attention being given to the methods of testing for bile acids and bile pigments in urine, and the examination of bile stones. Full attention is given to the study of the composition and properties of blood, and the examination of blood-stains by chemical, microscopical, and spectroscopic methods.

Each student must examine gastric juice for the presence of hydrochloric and lactic acids, and pepsin, and must also examine a blood-stained article.

The study of normal urine is taken up. Urea, uric acid, hippuric acid, and some other compounds are prepared synthetically and also isolated from urine; their chemical properties and reactions are studied carefully, as well as those of the sulphur compounds, aromatic bodies, and other constituents of normal urine. The tests for the recognition of pathological constituents, as leucin, tyrosin, bile acids, and pigments, blood, pus, albumin, sugar, etc., are applied to pure solutions of these substances and also to pathological urines. Urinary sediments are examined chemically and microscopically for casts, blood, pus, oxalates, urates, etc.

Thorough drill is given in quantitative analysis; each student becomes familiar with quantitative methods and manipulation, and with the balance and the various forms of measuring apparatus. Each is required to make twenty-five determinations, by volumetric and gravimetric methods, of urea, sugar, albumin, uric acid, phosphates, etc. A complete chemical analysis of milk and of urine is made. At the end of the course each is required to make a careful examination of twenty-five samples of urine, containing pathological constituents.

In addition to the regular course just described, another course will be offered in the analysis of food-stuffs and drinking water, and the examination of tissues for some of the more common poisons.

2. Bacteriology.—Lecture or quiz every day. Laboratory work daily from 8 to 12 and from 1 to 5. Six-fifths credit. Mr. WAITE.

This course is the same as that required of medical students. Those taking it for credit toward a University degree will be required to pass an examination at the end of the course submitted by Professor NOVY.

The object of this course is to make the student familiar with the methods of detection, isolation, and identification of the pathogenic micro-organisms. Lectures are given on the forms of bacteria, their classification, structure, multiplication and reproduction, their requirements of growth, and their chemical products. The principles of sterilization and disinfection are brought out, and special emphasis is given to their practical application. The latter half of the course deals exclusively with pathogenic organisms. The way in which bacteria produce disease, their attenuation, and the production of immunity are carefully explained. The sources of infection and methods of prevention are given, together with the general properties of the specific organisms.

The laboratory work begins with the preparation of the various culture media and the growth of certain non-pathogenic germs on these media. A bacteriological examination of water, milk, and soil is also included in this work. After the technique of the work is understood, pathogenic germs are grown on gelatin, agar potatoes, etc.; animals are inoculated, the effects observed, postmortem examinations made, and the germs isolated and identified.

ASTRONOMY.

1. General Astronomy.—This course will be conducted especially for academy and high school teachers. The work will consist of text-book study and lectures, and the subjects will be discussed with special reference to the manner of presenting them to beginning students. Howe's new text-book, Descriptive Astronomy, will be used as a foundation for the course. Several evenings will be devoted to the examination of heavenly bodies with the telescopes of the Observatory, and two evening lectures will be given at which a large number of stereopticon views of heavenly bodies and of the Lick Observatory will be shown. A few lectures in astro-physics will be included in this course. Two-fifths credit. Room 22, U. H., at 2. Dr. TOWNLEY.
2. Practical Course.—This will be a study of practical astronomy, including the determination of time, latitude and longitude with the Observatory instruments. It will be equivalent to Course 4 of the Calendar. Three-fifths credit. Room 22, U. H., at 3. Dr. TOWNLEY.
3. Spherical Astronomy.—Applications of spherical trigonometry and the use of logarithm tables. This course will be prefaced with a few lectures upon the derivation of the principal formulæ of spherical trigonometry. The various logarithm and numerical tables will then be considered, and their use exemplified by the solution of the more important spherical triangles which come up in astronomy, geodesy, and navigation. The time of sun-rise and sun-set, moon-rise and moon-set, the position of a vessel at sea, the direction of the meridian from star-elongations, and other problems will be considered. Special attention will be given to the manner of using logarithm tables, the American ephemeris, and the arranging of work in computing. Two-fifths credit. Room 22, U. H., at 4. Dr. TOWNLEY.

BOTANY.

1. General Botany.—This course will be conducted with especial reference to preparation for teaching in the secondary schools. It will include the collection and preservation of material, and the study of the general anatomy, physiology, and relationship of plants. A series of simple experiments will be used to demonstrate the relations of plants to their environment. Two-fifths credit. Lectures Mon., Wed., Fri., at 11. Laboratory work afternoons, 8 hours per week. Laboratory fee, $2.00. The Friday lectures will treat of evolution and heredity. They will be open to all students in the Summer School. Professor NEWCOMBE.
2. Plant Histology.—This course will include work in cell-organization and cell-activity, with a study of the modifications of the cellular structure of plants. In the aid of this work, the most recent methods in embedding, section-cutting, staining, and mounting will be employed. Two-fifths credit. Reading will be assigned and informal conferences held. Laboratory work afternoons, 10 hours per week. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Professor NEWCOMBE.
3. Plant Physiology.—A laboratory study of the relation of plants to their environment as manifested by the phenomena of respiration, nutrition, growth, and irritability. Two-fifths credit. Lectures Tu., Th., at 11. Laboratory work afternoons, 8 hours per week. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Professor NEWCOMBE.
4. Botany for Admission to the University. Lectures Mon., Wed., at 11. Laboratory work afternoons, 8 hours per week. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Professor NEWCOMBE.

ZOOLOGY.

1. General Zoology.—A study of typical species of animals with reference to structure, function, development, and relationship. Two-fifths or four-fifths credit. Lectures Mon., Wed., Fri., at 8; laboratory work forenoons. Laboratory fee, $2.00 or $4.00. Mr. JOHNSTON.
2. The Structure and Development of a Typical Vertebrate (the Frog).—Two-fifths credit. Lectures Tu., Th., at 8; laboratory work 12 hours a week, forenoons. Laboratory fee, $2.00. Mr. JOHNSTON.
This course may be elected by University students as a prerequisite for the advanced vertebrate work.
3. Teachers' Course.—This course may be elected as:
 - 3a. Work on Local Fauna.—Field and laboratory work in collecting and identifying specimens of the more important groups of animals, and text-book work. Field trips will be made Saturday mornings and at other times to be arranged; recitations and laboratory work forenoons. Amount of work and credit to be arranged. Mr. JOHNSTON.

- 3b. Technique.—Methods of collecting, killing, preserving, and preparing for microscopic study those forms most commonly used for laboratory work. Hours to be arranged. Mr. JOHNSTON.

HISTOLOGY.

1. Laboratory Work in Vertebrate Histology.—Every afternoon except Saturday from 1:30 to 5. Two-fifths credit. Mr. ORR.

Students will be examined the first week in October by Assistant Professor HUBER.

DRAWING.

1. Geometrical Drawing.—Two-fifths credit. Room 12, from 8 to 10. Mr. GOULDING.
2. Free-hand Drawing.—Pen and Ink, Pencil work, Sketching. Three-fifths credit. Room 12, from 8 to 11. Mr. GOULDING.
3. Descriptive Geometry.—Recitations and Drawing. Four-fifths credit. Rooms 10 and 12, from 9 to 12. Mr. WRENTMORE and Mr. GOULDING.
4. Free-hand Lettering.—Two-fifths credit. Room 12, from 10 to 12. Mr. GOULDING.

SURVEYING.

1. Use of Instruments.—One-fifth credit. From 1 to 3 for three weeks, and such additional time as may be necessary. Room 10. Mr. WRENTMORE.

CIVIL ENGINEERING.

1. Graphical Analysis of Structures.—Two-fifths credit. Room 10, at 11. Mr. WRENTMORE.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING.

1. Principles of Mechanism.—Three-fifths credit. Room 10, at 10. Additional hours to be arranged. Mr. WRENTMORE.
2. Principles of Mechanism.—Two-fifths credit. Room 10, at 10. Mr. WRENTMORE.

PHARMACY.

1. Lectures, Recitations, and Laboratory Work.—

Theory and practice of pharmacy. Manufacture of pharmaceutical preparations. Purification and manufacture of inorganic chemicals.

May be elected as two, four, or six-fifths credit. Assistant Professor STEVENS.

PHOTOGRAPHY.

1. Lectures, Recitations, and Practice.—

Action of light, photographic chemistry, manufacture of plates and papers, methods of printing, transferotypes, transparencies, lantern-slides, and photomicrography.

May be elected as two or four-fifths credit. Assistant Professor STEVENS.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW.

During the summer of 1898, commencing July 5, and continuing eight weeks, members of the Faculty of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan, will offer instruction in the following subjects:

Elementary Law.—Blackstone, Book I, and parts of II and III. July 18–29. Instructor FARRAH.

Elementary Real Property.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. July 18–August 5. Professor BREWSTER.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. July 5–15. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Lectures and Text-book. August 1–19. Instructor HUGHES.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. July 5–15. Professor WILGUS.

Domestic Relations.—Lectures. July 18–August 5. Instructor FARRAH.

Personal Property.—Lectures. August 8–26. Instructor DWYER.

Common Law Pleading.—Stephen's Common Law Pleading. July 5–22. Professor BOGLE.

Agency.—Lectures. August 8–19. Instructor DWYER.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements. August 22–26. Instructor HUGHES.

Common Carriers.—Lectures. July 5–22. Professor LANE.

Bills and Notes.—Johnson's Elements. August 15–26. Professor JOHNSON.

Real Property, Fixtures, etc.—Lectures July 5–22. Professor THOMPSON.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Lectures. August 8–26. Instructor FARRAH.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. July 25–August 12. Instructor DWYER.

Evidence.—Reynold's Theory of Evidence. August 1–19. Instructor HUGHES.

Corporations.—Lectures. July 25–August 5. Professor WILGUS.

TUITION FEES.

The fees will be as follows:

1. For a course covering ten hours, - - $ 4.00
2. For a course covering fifteen hours, - - 6.00
3. For a course covering twenty hours, - - 8.00
4. For a course covering one hundred hours or more, 35.00

But no student will be permitted to take more than twenty hours work per week without special permission of the Faculty.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

During the continuance of the Summer School of Law the following lectures and entertainments will be given which will be free to all the students of the Summer Schools:

The Judicial System of the Jews,

PROFESSOR B. M. THOMPSON.

The Jewish Commonwealth,

PROFESSOR J. C. KNOWLTON.

The Lawyer,

JUDGE VICTOR H. LANE.

Magna Charta,

PROFESSOR H. L. WILGUS.

Those who desire further information concerning this Department may address letters of inquiry to E. F. Johnson, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

University of Michigan

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The tenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 27, 1904, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular Faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from text-books and lectures.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of every State in the Union, the reports of the Federal Courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, and Canadian reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series, one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and copies of the statutes of many of the States, and of the United States. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well provided with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals. The Journal of Jurisprudence (Edinburgh), the Law Quarterly Review (London), the American Law Review, the American Law Register, the Criminal Law Magazine, the Albany Law Journal, the Central Law Journal, the Juridical Review, the Green Bag, and others are regularly taken and kept on file.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; and, recently, by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the State, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

The late Hon. Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars. This gift, which has been used in the purchase of books, has added materially to the value and efficiency of the large collection of reports and text-books presented to the library by Mr. Buhl a few years ago, and known as the Buhl Law Library. It has enabled the Department to provide for its students library facilities that are second to none in the country.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

TUITION FEES

For a full course the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars for each subject elected.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St.

Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00, per week.

CREDIT FOR WORK DONE

Credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for subjects passed in the Summer Session may be granted under the following conditions:—

The student desiring such credit must, when applying for admission to the regular course, first present the required credentials, and satisfy the Dean of the Department as to his right to apply for advanced standing in the second-year or third-year classes. He will then receive credit in subjects passed in the Summer Session in which his credentials would entitle him to ask for an examination for advanced standing. For regulations as to admission to advanced standing, see the regular announcement of the Department of Law.

Furthermore, the rules governing admission to the second-year class will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten under an attorney and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study under an attorney required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing.

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion.

The following courses are offered:—

Agency.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Instructor SUNDERLAND.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor BOGLE.

Criminal Law.—Knowlton's Lectures and Cases. Instructor DWYER.

Domestic Relations.—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Assistant Professor SAGE.

Elementary Law.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Books I, II. Professor DRAKE.

Real Property (Elementary).—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. Instructor ROOD.

Sales.—Tiffany on Sales. Professor BATES.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. Professor WILGUS.

Bailments and Carriers.—Goddard's Outlines and Cases. Instructor DWYER.

Bills and Notes.—Bigelow's Bills and Notes. Professor BATES.

Code Pleading.—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.

Common Law Pleading.—Perry's Common Law Pleading. Professor BOGLE.

Corporations (Private).—Lectures. Professor WILGUS.

Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Assistant Professor SAGE.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Bispham's Equity Jurisprudence. Instructor ROOD.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Instructor DWYER.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Assistant Professor SAGE.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

Students paying the full fee may elect courses in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts without additional fee, provided such election does not interfere with their work in this department.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1904-1905 will open on Tuesday, September 27, 1904, and will continue until June 22, 1905.

The course covers three years of instruction, of nine months each. No one method of instruction is exclusively adopted, but, recognizing the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Faculty endeavors so to combine lectures with the use of text-books, and especially with the careful study of illustrative cases, as to give the student the greatest breadth of view, the soundest scholarship, and the best practical training for the active work of his profession.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects: Elementary Law, Elementary Real Property, Contracts, Criminal Law and Procedure, Torts, Domestic Relations, Personal Property, Common Law Pleading, Evidence, Agency, Partnership, Bills and Notes, Bailments and Carriers, Code Pleading, Equity Pleading, Real Property, Equity Jurisprudence, Corporations, Damages, U. S. Practice, Constitutional Law, Federal Jurisprudence, Extraordinary Legal Remedies, Wills, Private International Law, Conveyancing, Suretyship, Mortgages, Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors, the Science of Jurisprudence, Railway Law, Taxation, and Public Officers.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. The non-resident member is engaged in practice, but meets his classes on designated days. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, The Bankruptcy Act, Admiralty Law, Medical Jurisprudence, Irrigation, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law and Patent Law. There are fifteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1903-1904) nearly nine hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Summer Session of the Department of Literature Science and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 27th and continue for six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete announcement will be sent upon application to James H. Wade, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The eleventh annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 26, 1905, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular Faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from text-books and lectures.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of every State in the Union, the reports of the Federal Courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, and Canadian reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series, one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and copies of the statutes of many of the States, and of the United States. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well provided with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals. The Journal of Jurisprudence (Edinburgh), the Law Quarterly Review (London), the American Law Review, the American Law Register, the Criminal Law Magazine, the Albany Law Journal, the Central Law Journal, the Juridical Review, the Green Bag, and others are regularly taken and kept on file.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts; and, recently, by the gift of the valuable law library of Hon. Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the State, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan.

The late Hon. Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars. This gift, which has been used in the purchase of books, has added materially to the value and efficiency of the large collection of reports and text-books presented to the library by Mr. Buhl a few years ago, and known as the Buhl

Law Library. It has enabled the Department to provide for its students library facilities that are second to none in the country.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

TUITION FEES

For three or more courses the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars for each subject elected.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure a certificate showing the work passed as given in the Summer Session.

Students desiring credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for work done in the Summer Session must at the time they enroll in the Summer Session secure from the Dean of the Department permission to apply for advanced standing in the subjects in which credit is desired. They will then be enrolled by the Secretary of the Department as candidates for advanced standing in such subjects as are included in their certificates from the Dean, and on satisfying the professor in charge of any subject as to previous study and passing a satisfactory examination on that subject in the Summer Session, they will be given credit therefor in the regular course.

The regulations governing admission to advanced standing are published in the Department Announcement. They will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten in an office and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing. All students intending to seek admission to the second-year class on examination are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity for thorough review provided by the Summer courses.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion.

The following courses are offered:—

- Agency*.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Professor GODDARD.
Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.
Criminal Law.—Clark on Criminal Law. Professor KNOWLTON.
Criminal Procedure.—Clark's Criminal Procedure. Professor BUNKER.
Domestic Relations.—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Professor SAGE.
Elementary Law.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Books I, II. Professor GODDARD.
Real Property (Elementary).—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. Professor DRAKE.
Sales.—Tiffany on Sales. Professor BATES.
Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. Professor BOGLE.
Bailments and Carriers.—Goddard's Outlines and Cases. Professor GODDARD.
Bills and Notes.—Bigelow's Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.
Code Pleading.—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.
Common Law Pleading.—Perry's Common Law Pleading. Professor BOGLE.
Corporations (Private).—Text-book and Cases. Professor BATES.
Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Professor SAGE.
Equity Jurisprudence.—Bispham's Equity Jurisprudence. Professor LANE.
Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Professor BUNKER.
Evidence.—Greenleaf on Evidence, Volume I. Professor LANE.
Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Professor SAGE.
Quasi-Contracts.—Lectures and Cases. Professor KNOWLTON.
Real Property (Advanced).— on Real Property. Professor BATES.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered.

Students paying the full fee may elect courses in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts without additional fee, provided such election does not interfere with their work in this department.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1905-1906 will open on Tuesday, September 26, 1905, and will continue until June 21, 1906.

The course covers three years of instruction, of nine months each. No one method of instruction is exclusively adopted, but, recognizing the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Faculty endeavors so to combine lectures with the use of text-books, and especially with the careful study of illustrative cases, as to give the student the greatest breadth of view, the soundest scholarship, and the best practical training for the active work of his profession.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects: Elementary Law, Elementary Real Property, Contracts, Criminal Law and Procedure, Torts, Domestic Relations, Personal Property, Common Law Pleading, Evidence, Agency, Partnership, Bills and Notes, Bailments and Carriers, Code Pleading, Equity Pleading, Real Property, Equity Jurisprudence, Corporations, Damages, U. S. Practice, Constitutional Law, Federal Jurisprudence, Extraordinary Legal Remedies, Wills, Private International Law, Conveyancing, Suretyship, Mortgages, Assignments for the Benefit of Creditors, the Science of Jurisprudence, Railway Law, Taxation, and Public Officers.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. The non-resident member is engaged in practice, but meets his classes on designated days. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, The Bankruptcy Act, Admiralty Law, Medical Jurisprudence, Irrigation, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law and Patent Law. There are fifteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1904-1905) nearly nine hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 27th and continue for six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete announcement will be sent upon application to James H. Wade, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The thirteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 24, 1907, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from textbooks and collections of cases.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well supplied with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

For three or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars for each subject elected. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor, is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure a certificate showing the work passed as given in the Summer Session.

Students desiring credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for work done in the Summer Session must at the time they enroll in the Summer Session secure from the Dean of the Department permission to apply for advanced standing in the subjects in which credit is desired. They will then be enrolled by the Secretary of the Department as candidates for advanced standing in such subjects as are included in their certificates from the Dean, and on satisfying the professor in charge of any subject as to previous study and passing a satisfactory examination on that subject in the Summer Session, they will be given credit therefor in the regular course.

The following persons, if they have the general educational qualifications for admission to the department, may become candidates for admission upon advanced standing to the second year class in the regular session:—

(a) Attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an examination for admission to the bar is required.

(b) Persons who have satisfactorily completed one year's work in another law school of approved standing and who bring proper certificates thereof.

(c) Persons who actually and in good faith and as their principal occupation, have, for a period of not less than fifteen months, pursued, in the office or under the guidance of some reputable practitioner or instructor, a course of study fairly equivalent to that pursued by the first year class in the Department, and who present to the Dean the affidavit of such practitioner or instructor showing with particularity that this requirement has been complied with.

The above regulations will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten in an office and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing.

All students intending to seek admission to the second-year class on examination are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity for thorough review provided by the Summer courses.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion:—

The following courses are offered:—

Agency.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Mr. HOLBROOK.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Clark on Criminal Law. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Procedure.—Clark's Criminal Procedure. Professor BUNKER.

Domestic Relations.—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Professor SAGE.

Elementary Law.—Blackstone's Commentaries, Books I, II. Professor DRAKE.

Torts.—Cooley's Elements of Torts. Mr. HOLBROOK.

Bills and Notes.—Bigelow's Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.

Code Pleading.—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.

Common Law Pleading.—Martin's Civil Procedure. Professor BOGLE.

Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Professor SAGE.

Corporations (Private).—Clark on Corporations, and cases. Mr. HOLBROOK.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Eaton's Equity Jurisprudence. Professor LANE.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading.—Professor BUNKER.

Evidence.—Greenleaf on Evidence, Volume I. Professor LANE.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Professor SAGE.

Real Property (Advanced).—Tiedman's Cases on Real Property. Professor DRAKE.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1907-1908 will open on Tuesday, September 24, 1907, and will continue until June 18, 1908.

The course covers three years of instruction, of nine months each. No one method of instruction is exclusively adopted, but, recognizing the advantages and disadvantages of each, the Faculty endeavors so to combine lectures with the use of text-books, and especially with the careful study of illustrative cases, as to give the student the greatest breadth of view, the soundest scholarship, and the best practical training for the active work of his profession.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects:

FIRST YEAR

Agency.
Contracts.
Criminal Law.
Criminal Procedure.
Domestic Relations
Elementary Law
Real Property (Elementary).
Sales.
Torts.

SECOND YEAR

Bailments and Carriers.
Bills and Notes.
Common Law Pleading.
Code Pleading.
Corporations.
Damages.
Equity Jurisprudence.
Equity Pleading.
Evidence.
Partnership.
Quasi-Contracts.
Real Property.

THIRD YEAR

Bankruptcy and Insolvency.
Constitutional Law.
Conveyancing.
Corporations (Public).
Equity Jurisprudence.
Extraordinary Legal Remedies.
Federal Practice.
Insurance.
Judgments, Attachments, Garnishments, etc.
Jurisprudence (Science of).
Medical Jurisprudence.
Mortgages.
Practice.
Practice Court.
Private International Law.
Public Officers.
Railway Law.
Roman Law.
Suretyship.
Taxation.
Wills and Administration.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Roman Law, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, The Interstate Commerce Act, The Bankruptcy Act, Admiralty Law, Irrigation, Insurance, Mining Law, Copyright Law, Patent Law and Statute Law. There are fifteen special lecturers, and each of the special courses consists of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1906-1907) about eight hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address: The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 25th and continue for six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED:—

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete Announcement will be sent upon application to James H. Wade, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The fourteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 22, 1908, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately, and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from textbooks and collections of cases.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Jurist, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well supplied with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

For three or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure a certificate showing the work passed as given in the Summer Session.

Students desiring credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for work done in the Summer Session must at the time they enroll in the Summer Session secure from the Dean of the Department permission to apply for advanced standing in the subjects in which credit is desired. They will then be enrolled by the Secretary of the Department as candidates for advanced standing in such subjects as are included in their certificates from the Dean, and on satisfying the professor in charge of any subject as to previous study and passing a satisfactory examination on that subject in the Summer Session, they will be given credit therefor in the regular course.

The following persons, if they have the general educational qualifications for admission to the department, may become candidates for admission upon advanced standing to the second year class in the regular session:—

(a) Attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an examination for admission to the bar is required.

(b) Persons who have satisfactorily completed one year's work in another law school of approved standing and who bring proper certificates thereof.

(c) Persons who actually and in good faith and as their principal occupation, have, for a period of not less than fifteen months, pursued, in the office or under the guidance of some reputable practitioner or instructor, a course of study fairly equivalent to that pursued by the first year class in the Department, and who present to the Dean the affidavit of such practitioner or instructor showing with particularity that this requirement has been complied with.

The above regulations will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten in an office and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing.

All students intending to seek admission to the second-year class on examination are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity for thorough review provided by the Summer course.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion:—

The following courses are offered:—

Agency.—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Assistant Professor HOLBROOK.

Contracts.—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.

Criminal Law.—Rood's Digest of Criminal Law Cases. Professor ROOD.

Criminal Procedure.—Clark's Criminal Procedure. Professor BUNKER.

Domestic Relations.—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Assistant Professor HOLBROOK.

Real Property (Elementary).—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. Professor ROOD.

Sales.—Tiffany on Sales. Assistant Professor HOLBROOK.

Torts.—Hale on Torts. Professor BUNKER.

Bailments and Carriers.—Goddard's Outlines and Cases. Professor SUNDERLAND.

Bills and Notes.—Bunker's Cases on Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.

Code Pleading.—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.

Common Law Pleading.—Martin's Civil Procedure. Professor BOGLE.

Damages.—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Professor DRAKE.

Corporations (Private).—Clark on Corporations, and cases. Professor SUNDERLAND.

Equity Jurisprudence.—Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence (Student Edition). Professor ROOD.

Equity Pleading.—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Professor THOMPSON.

Evidence.—Reynold's Theory of Evidence, Wilgus's Cases. Professor SUNDERLAND.

Partnership.—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Professor DRAKE.

Real Property (Advanced).—Finch's Cases on Real Property. Professor THOMPSON.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1908-1909 will open on Tuesday, September 29, 1908, and will continue until June 24, 1909.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The following is a statement of the subjects upon which instruction is offered and the year each subject is given. The work consists for the most part of quiz, accompanied by oral exposition on assigned work in text-books and cases. For all recitations the classes are divided into sections.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the texts and case books used is published and distributed.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects:—

FIRST YEAR.

Agency.
Contracts.

Jurisprudence (Science of).
Medical Jurisprudence.
Mortgages.
Practice.
Practice Court.
Private International Law.
Public Officers.
Railway Law.
Roman Law.
Suretyship.
Taxation.
Wills and Administration.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Legal Ethics, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, Admiralty Law, Irrigation Law, Mining Law, Copyright Law, Patent Law and Statute Law, each of these special courses consisting of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1907-1908) about eight hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENTS OF LITERATURE SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Summer Sessions of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 22. The former will continue for eight and the latter for six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED:—

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete Announcement will be sent upon application to James H. Wade, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW

The fifteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 28, 1909, and continue for eight weeks. The Summer Session is conducted for purposes somewhat different from those of the Regular Session, as will be hereafter explained, but it is under the full official direction and control of the University, and the instruction is given by members of the Faculty of the Department of Law, about two-thirds of the regular faculty serving as instructors in each Summer Session. For the most part each subject is taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session. The work covered includes a thorough review of the leading topics of the law.

The students of the Summer Session consist principally of those who have studied law privately, and who take this means of reviewing and grounding themselves in their work, of those who seek a clear direction for contemplated future study, of students having back work to make up, and of persons desiring a brief study of legal subjects for business purposes, or as part of a liberal education. To meet the needs of these is the aim of the work. Those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar will find the work especially helpful. Much of the work is practically the same as that offered in the Higher Commercial Courses of the University, especially in the following subjects:—

Contracts, Bills and Notes, Agency, Domestic Relations, Partnership, Sales, Real Property, Common Carriers and Corporations.

The work will consist of daily recitations from text-books and collections of cases.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Weekly Reporter, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches, such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well supplied with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

No examinations for admission will be held, but each applicant is expected to present evidence that he is prepared to pursue the work to advantage.

For three or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or ten dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure a certificate showing the work passed as given in the Summer Session.

Students desiring credit in the regular course of the Department of Law for work done in the Summer Session must at the time they enroll in the Summer Session secure from the Dean of the Department permission to apply for advanced standing in the subjects in which credit is desired. They will then be enrolled by the Secretary of the Department as candidates for advanced standing in such subjects as are included in their certificates from the Dean, and on satisfying the professor in charge of any subject as to previous study and passing a satisfactory examination on that subject in the Summer Session, they will be given credit therefor in the regular course.

The following persons, if they have the general educational qualifications for admission to the department, may become candidates for admission upon advanced standing to the second year class in the regular session:—

(a) Attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an examination for admission to the bar is required.

(b) Persons who have satisfactorily completed one year's work in another law school of approved standing and who bring proper certificates thereof.

(c) Persons who actually and in good faith and as their principal occupation, have, for a period of not less than fifteen months, pursued, in the office or under the guidance of some reputable practitioner or instructor, a course of study fairly equivalent to that pursued by the first year class in the Department, and who present to the Dean the affidavit of such practitioner or instructor showing with particularity that this requirement has been complied with.

The above regulations will be so far modified in favor of students of the Summer Session as to make twelve months' study, ten in an office and two in the Summer Session, the equivalent of the fifteen months' study required of other applicants for admission to the examinations for second-year standing. Blank forms for the certificate of study may be procured by applying to the Secretary of the Department of Law.

All students intending to seek admission to the second-year class on examination are urged to avail themselves of the opportunity for thorough review provided by the Summer course.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered. It is expected that three hours of class-room work per day will be taken, and no student will be allowed to take more than twenty hours per week, except as indicated below. An examination will be held in each subject at its conclusion:—

The following courses are offered:—

- Agency.*—Mechem's Outlines and Cases. Assistant Professor HOLBROOK.
- Contracts.*—Anson on Contracts. Professor KNOWLTON.
- Criminal Law.*—Rood's Digest of Criminal Law Cases. Professor ROOD.
- Criminal Procedure.*—Clark's Criminal Procedure. Professor BUNKER.
- Domestic Relations.*—Tiffany on Domestic Relations. Assistant Professor HOLBROOK.
- Elementary Law.*—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book I, II. Professor DRAKE.
- Real Property (Elementary).*—Blackstone's Commentaries, Book II. Professor ROOD.
- Sales.*—Tiffany on Sales. Professor LANE.
- Torts.*—Hale on Torts. Professor BUNKER.
- Bailments and Carriers.*—Goddard's Outlines and Cases. Professor DRAKE.
- Bills and Notes.*—Bunker's Cases on Bills and Notes. Professor BUNKER.
- Code Pleading.*—Pomeroy's Code Remedies. Professor BOGLE.
- Common Law Pleading.*—Martin's Civil Procedure. Professor BOGLE.
- Damages.*—Mechem's Cases on Damages. Professor DRAKE.
- Corporations (Private).*—Clark on Corporations, and cases. Professor LANE.
- Equity Jurisprudence.*—Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence (Student Edition). Professor ROOD.
- Equity Pleading.*—Thompson's Equity Pleading. Professor THOMPSON.
- Evidence.*—Reynold's Theory of Evidence, Wilgus's Cases. Professor LANE.
- Partnership.*—Mechem's Elements and Cases. Professor DRAKE.
- Quasi-Contracts.*—Woodruff's Cases. Professor KNOWLTON.
- Real Property (Advanced).*—Finch's Cases on Real Property. Professor THOMPSON.

Students who have not previously studied law for at least ten months will not be permitted to take more than twenty hours per week. Those presenting certificates of at least ten months prior reading may secure permission to take such work as it appears they are able to carry. The ground is necessarily covered rapidly, and experience suggests the caution that students should not attempt to carry too many subjects. Only in exceptional cases is it advisable to take more than twenty recitations per week.

The above brief courses are offered, not as in any sense the equivalent of the corresponding courses of the regular session, but as affording to persons who have previously studied the subjects a fitting review to prepare them to ask for advanced standing in this or any other law school; and as furnishing to persons who are preparing to take examination for admission to the bar a valuable drill on the fundamental principles of the subjects offered.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF LAW OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

The regular session of this Department of the University of Michigan for 1909-1910 will open on Tuesday, October 5, 1909, and will continue until June 30, 1910.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The following is a statement of the subjects upon which instruction is offered and the year each subject is given. The work consists for the most part of quiz, accompanied by oral exposition on assigned work in text-books and cases. For all recitations the classes are divided into sections.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the texts and case books used is published and distributed.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects:—

Suretyship.
Taxation.
Wills and Administration.

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Legal Ethics, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, Admiralty Law and Statute Law, each of these special courses consisting of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1908-1909) about eight hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

DEPARTMENT OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS, AND OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Summer Sessions of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, and of Medicine and Surgery will open June 28. The former will continue for eight and the latter six weeks.

FOR WHOM DESIGNED:—

The courses of instruction have been designed to meet the needs of a large body of students whose duties during the school year prevent their attendance upon the University. Superintendents of Schools and Principals of High Schools who desire to continue their academic or professional studies are thus enabled to keep in touch with recent advances in science and education. Teachers in High Schools and Colleges who wish to pursue special subjects either for general culture or as an aid in their regular work are afforded ample opportunity for such study. Candidates for State certificates and persons preparing for special or technical examinations are enabled to make thorough reviews in languages, history, mathematics, drawing, the laboratory sciences, and in law. Graduates of Normal Schools who aspire to a degree from the University find it of great advantage to begin work, for such a degree in the Summer Session and later enter for the completion of their course. Graduate students are afforded adequate provision for study in all important subjects; specific mention of the opportunities for graduate work will be found under many of the subjects and under a separate heading of the general Announcement.

Preparatory students who desire to review in some one or more branches before entering upon the regular work in any department of the University will find courses in Greek, English and modern languages, chemistry, physics, botany, algebra, geometry, and zoology, covering substantially the work prescribed for entrance to the University. Prospective students of Medicine will find opportunities for preliminary study as well as for completing part of the prescribed work of the first year.

In the Department of Medicine and Surgery the work of the Summer Session is designed to meet the needs of three classes of students: (a) professional practitioners in Medicine who may wish to devote themselves to some special line of work, or to familiarize themselves with recent literature and methods; (b) students who, for any reason, wish to make up arrearages or to do special work in some one line; (c) teachers or others who expect ultimately to enter the profession, and wish to complete their preparation or to do some part of the work before entering definitely for a degree.

Students in any department are permitted to take work in any other department in accordance with the rules and regulations of that department.

A complete Announcement will be sent upon application to Shirley W. Smith, Ann Arbor.

COURSES OF FREE LECTURES

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law, address Edwin C. Goddard, Secretary of the Faculty, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Department of Law

SUMMER SESSION

The sixteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin on Tuesday, July 5, 1910, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each, and will be so conducted as to enable those who attend, and who so desire, to earn credit toward a degree in the courses pursued. Hitherto the courses in the Summer Session have been conducted as brief review courses, but in the future the work will be substantially the same as that in the first two years of the regular session. In 1910 and the even years thereafter half the subjects of the first two years of the regular course will be given, and the other half will be offered in 1911 and in the odd years thereafter, so that all the subjects of the first two years of the regular course will be offered in any two successive Summer Sessions. Instruction will be given by members of the Faculty of the Department and, for the most part, each subject will be taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session.

While the nature of the work has been changed as above indicated, it will, nevertheless, be conducted with a view to meeting the needs of such students as have hitherto attended the Summer Session. A particular effort will be made to make the courses valuable to those who have studied law privately, and who find it possible in the summer to take thorough instruction, either in the work already studied, or in subjects not before pursued. The Summer Session will also offer an opportunity to those who wish to take a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar. One particular advantage of the change is that hereafter students taking a full course may pursue in the Summer Session any of the subjects of the first two years in exactly the same way as in the regular session. An entire semester's work can be completed in two Summer Sessions, or possibly in three five week periods, and a full year's work in three Summer Sessions. In this way, by proper adjustment, it will be possible for those who wish to do so to shorten by a semester, or even by practically an entire year, the time required to complete the full three years' course. Students who desire to do this should communicate as early as possible with the Secretary, in order that their schedule of work may be so arranged as to accomplish the desired end.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Weekly Reporter, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation

Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well equipped with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains about one hundred and seventy-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session, and no examinations for admission will be held at the time of the opening of the Session. But students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the Department, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission are fully explained in the regular announcement of the Department. They cover the equivalent of at least a four years' high school course, and require the filing of a certificate showing the completion of fifteen units of work, a unit being defined as a course pursued for five hours a week for at least thirty-six weeks. For detailed information the student is referred to the regular announcement. A blank form for the certificate may be obtained by addressing the Secretary of the Law Faculty.

FEES

For two or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or twenty dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 16,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east or west, north or south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for examinations for admission upon advanced standing as candidates for a degree, are especially urged to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way acquire effective and accurate habits of study, and secure credit in the subjects actually pursued. They may also during the summer take examinations in subjects previously studied, in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing. While it is desirable that all courses be taken, if possible, under regular instruction, students who still consider it necessary to seek credit for study done in offices, and who cannot take in the Summer Session all the subjects so studied, will find it especially advantageous to take in class at least so much of the work as can be done in one Summer Session.

The following persons, if they have the general educational qualifications for admission to the Department, may become candidates for admission upon advanced standing to the second year class in the regular session:—

(a) Attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an examination for admission to the bar is required.

(b) Persons who have satisfactorily completed one year's work in another law school of approved standing and who bring proper certificates thereof.

(c) Persons who actually and in good faith and as their principal occupation, have, for a period of not less than fifteen months, pursued, in the office or under the guidance of some reputable practitioner or instructor, a course of study fairly equivalent to that pursued by the first year class in the Department, and who present to the Dean the affidavit of such practitioner or instructor showing with particularity that this requirement has been complied with.

The above regulations will be so far modified in favor of the students of the Summer Session as to permit those who have studied nine months in an office and ten weeks in the Summer Session to become applicants for admission to second year standing. Blank forms for the certificate of study in an office may be secured in advance by applying to the Secretary of the Department of Law.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered, but students in general are not expected to take more than twelve hours a week. This requirement, however, may be modified in the case of students who have had considerable previous study or experience in the law. In general, each subject is given six hours a week for five weeks, and is followed by an examination, which must be taken by those who desire credit for the course.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Department of Law address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Box L, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan for 1910-1911 will open on Tuesday, October 4, 1910, and will continue until June 29, 1911.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The following is a statement of the subjects upon which instruction is offered and the year each subject is given. The work consists for the most part of quiz, accompanied by oral exposition on assigned work in text-books and cases. For all recitations the classes are divided into sections.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the texts and case books used is published and distributed.

The course of instruction covers the following subjects:—

The faculty is composed of both resident and non-resident members. The resident members, fifteen in number, devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction. In addition to the instruction by the regular staff, which covers all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as International Law, Legal Ethics, Constitutional Law, Constitutional History, Admiralty Law and Statute Law, each of these special courses consisting of from six to fifteen lectures.

During the present year (1909-1910) about eight hundred students have been in attendance. An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address The Dean of the Department of Law, Ann Arbor, Mich.

SUMMER SESSION

The seventeenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin on Monday, June 26, 1911, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each, and will provide instruction in half the subjects given in the first two years of the regular course in the Department. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive Summer Sessions all the subjects of the first two years of the regular course, half the subjects being given in the even years, and the other half in the odd years. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are offered every year. Instruction will be given by members of the Faculty of the Department, and, for the most part, each subject will be taught by the professor in charge of that subject in the regular session.

The work in each subject in the Summer Session is the same in kind and amount as the work in that subject in the regular session, and full credit toward a degree is given students who pass the work during the summer. It is possible for students, by availing themselves of the Summer Sessions, to shorten the time required for receiving the degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. To do this to advantage, the student should begin his study of the law in the Summer Session, and the work will be so arranged that he can complete his course two years from the following September.

While the student who so desires can take any subject offered in the Summer Session as work toward his law degree, a special effort is made to make the summer courses valuable to those not candidates for a degree, who desire more or less thorough instruction in the law, either by way of review of private study, or as a preparation for private study in the future. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who wish a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the Department upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Weekly Reporter, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well equipped with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The Library is open for consultation by students from 9 A. M. to 12 M., from 1:30 to 4:30 and 7 to 10 P. M., during the session. Students are not permitted to take books from the library building, but during the hours named are allowed free access to them.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than two hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session, and no examinations for admission will be held at the time of the opening of the Session. But students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the Department, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission are fully explained in the regular announcement of the Department. They cover the equivalent of at least a four years' high school course, and require the filing of a certificate showing the completion of fifteen units of work, a unit being defined as a course pursued for five hours a week for at least thirty-six weeks. For detailed information the student is referred to the regular announcement. A blank form for the certificate may be obtained by addressing the Secretary of the Law Faculty.

In 1912, and thereafter, a year of college work, in addition to the high school course, will be required for admission to the Department as candidate for a degree.

FEES

For two or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or twenty dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 18,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east and west, north and south. Electric cars run to Jackson every hour and to Detroit every half hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.00, and board from $2.00 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for examinations for admission upon advanced standing as candidates for a degree, are especially urged to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way acquire effective and accurate habits of study, and secure credit in the subjects actually pursued. They may also during the summer take examinations in subjects previously studied, in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing. While it is desirable that all courses be taken, if possible, under regular instruction, students who still consider it necessary to seek credit for study done in offices, and who cannot take in the Summer Session all the subjects so studied, will find it especially advantageous to take in class at least so much of the work as can be done in one Summer Session.

The following persons, if they have the general educational qualifications for admission to the Department, may apply for examination for admission upon advanced standing to the second year class in the regular session:—

(a) Attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an examination for admission to the bar is required.

(b) Persons who have satisfactorily completed one year's work in another law school of approved standing and who bring proper certificates thereof.

Courses taken or examinations passed in the Summer Session will count the same as similar work or examinations in the Regular Session.

COURSES OF STUDY

The schedule of work is so arranged that no two recitations are held at the same hour. Each student can, accordingly, take any course offered, but students in general are not expected to take more than twelve hours a week. This requirement, however, may be modified in the case of students who have had considerable previous study or experience in the law. In general, each subject is given six hours a week for five weeks, and is followed by an examination, which must be taken by those who desire credit for the course.

Department of Law

Summer Session

The eighteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin on Monday, June 24, 1912, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the Summer Sessions in working for their law degrees. The fundamental courses in contracts, torts and pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the Department, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by commencing in June of any summer, to complete their course in two years from the following September. The work of the summer is the same in kind and amount as in the corresponding subjects in the regular year, and the credit for any course in the summer is the same as the credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. Special effort is made to satisfy the needs of these classes of students. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who wish a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the Department upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARIES

The Law Library contains the reports of the courts of last resort of every State in the Union, the reports of intermediate appellate courts where such exist, and of many of the inferior state courts, the reports of the Federal courts, the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian and British Colonial reports, together with such collateral reports as the Law Journal Reports, the Jurist, the Law Times Reports, the Weekly Reporter, the Scottish Law Reporter, the Irish Weekly Reporter, the Irish Law Times, the English Ruling Cases, the National Reporter System, the American Decisions, the American Reports, the American State Reports, and the Lawyers' Reports Annotated, as well as several series of cases upon particular branches such as the American Probate Reports, the American Electrical Cases, the American and English Railroad Cases, the American and English Corporation Cases, etc. Of several of the more important series one or more duplicates are to be found in the library. It also contains an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American, and the statutes of the several states, the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, together with the session laws, bringing the same to date. Files of the earlier session laws of the states are being acquired as speedily as possible, and those of the United States, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania are already complete. New reports, as they are issued, are added, as are new text-books and treatises of merit. The library is also well equipped with sets of selected and leading cases and of legal periodicals.

Bound volumes of the leading American and foreign legal periodicals are filed and many of the earlier sets, now discontinued, have also been placed on the shelves.

The library was enriched some years ago by the gift of the valuable law library of the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

The late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit presented a large collection of reports and text-books, known as the Buhl Law Library, and later bequeathed to the University for the Law Library the sum of ten thousand dollars, which has been expended in the purchase of books, adding materially to the value and efficiency of his earlier gift.

Still later the valuable law library of the Honorable Samuel T. Douglass, for many years one of the leading lawyers of the state, and formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, was added to the collection.

These gifts, together with that of the heirs of Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, those of O. H. Dean, and others, have enabled the department to provide for its students exceptional library facilities.

A card catalogue of the text-books is approaching completion, the printed cards issued by the Government being added as soon as they are available.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than two hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt to the Secretary by whom he will be enrolled as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session, and no examination for admission will be held at the time of the opening of the Session. But students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the Department, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission are fully explained in the regular announcement of the Department. They cover the completion of a year of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Department of Law.

FEES

For two or more subjects the fee is twenty-five dollars, or twenty dollars for a single subject.

But students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

LOCATION, EXPENSES, BOARD, ETC.

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 15,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is the junction of the Michigan Central and the Ann Arbor Railroads, making it easily accessible from the east and west, north and south. Electric cars run to Jackson every two hours and to Detroit every hour, connecting at Detroit with the beautiful steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip on the water, of a day or more, is thus in easy reach at any time, and at a very light expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for a summer residence, and a most pleasant place for summer study. Upon the campus is located one of the largest gymnasiums in the country, amply equipped with apparatus. Special courses in physical training are given during the Summer Session.

Expenses of living are small. Rooms cost from $1.00 to $2.50, and board from $2.50 to $4.00 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in the Department and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work in the Department without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing. Courses taken or examinations passed in the Summer Session will count the same as similar work or examinations in the Regular Session.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Department:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission to the Department, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in the Department to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing in the Department.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the Department before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit and the time that will probably be required to complete the course.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting too much work. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for the work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

Department of Law

Summer Session

The nineteenth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin on Monday, June 23, 1913, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer sessions in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the Department, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. Special effort is made to satisfy the needs of these classes of students. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who wish a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the Department upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains about thirty-three thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and those of the late O. H. Dean, of Kansas City.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than two hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt to the Secretary by whom he will be enrolled as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session, and no examinations for admission will be held at the time of the opening of the Session. But students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the Department, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission are fully explained in the regular announcement of the Department. They cover the completion of a year of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Department of Law.

In the near future an additional year of college work will be required for admission to the Department.

FEEES

For all students in law the fee is twenty-five dollars. There is also a medical and dispensary service fee of fifty cents.

Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per week. There are no dormitories, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 18,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago, or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $4.75; from Toledo, $1.01.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in the Department, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work in the Department without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing. Courses taken or examinations passed in the summer Session will count the same as similar work or examinations in the regular session.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Department:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission to the Department, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved Law School, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in the Department to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing in the Department.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the Department before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the course.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

Department of Law

Summer Session

The twentieth annual Summer Session of the Department of Law of the University of Michigan will begin on Monday, June 22, 1914, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer sessions in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the Department, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. Special effort is made to satisfy the needs of these classes of students. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who wish a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the Department upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains about thirty-three thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and those of the late O. H. Dean, of Kansas City.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than two hundred fifty thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Department of Law. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Department of Law, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this Department.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session. Students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the Department, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission as candidate for a degree are fully explained in the regular announcement of the Department. They cover the completion of a year of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Department of Law.

In October, 1915, and thereafter an additional year of college work will be required for admission to the Department.

FEEES

The fee in this department is twenty-five dollars. There is also a University Health Service fee of fifty cents. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in this department may elect work in the Department of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per week. There are no dormitories, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 18,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago, or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $4.75; from Toledo, $1.01.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in the Department, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work in the Department without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Department:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission to the Department, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved Law School, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in the Department to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing in the Department.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the Department before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the course.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-first annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 21, 1915, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer sessions in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. Special effort is made to satisfy the needs of these classes of students. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who wish a brief study of the law for business purposes, or who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains about thirty-three thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and O. H. Dean, of Kansas City.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than two hundred fifty thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session. Students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the School, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission as candidate for a degree are fully explained in the regular announcement of the School. They cover the completion of two years of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Law School.

FEEES

The fee in this department is twenty-six dollars. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per week. There are no dormitories, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 18,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago, or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $6.00; from Toledo, $1.14.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing (upon examination) in this School.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-second annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 26, 1916, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer session in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains about thirty-seven thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and O. H. Dean, of Kansas City.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than three hundred and sixty-five thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session. Students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the School, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission as candidate for a degree are fully explained in the regular announcement of the School. They cover the completion of two years of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Law School.

FEES

The fee in the Law School is twenty-six dollars. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 18,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago, or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $6.00; from Toledo, $1.14.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing (upon examination) in this School.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-third annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 25, 1917, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers all the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer session in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, and Pleading are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains about thirty-eight thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and the late Octavia W. Bates.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than three hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session. Students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the School, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission as candidate for a degree are fully explained in the regular announcement of the School. They cover the completion of two years of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Law School.

FEES

The fee in the Law School is twenty-six dollars. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $4 to $6 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 20,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago, or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $6.00; from Toledo, $1.14.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours.

They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing (upon examination) in this School.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each five week period of the session. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. The schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Box L, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1917-1918 will open on Tuesday, October 2, 1917, and will continue until June 27, 1918.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman Law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even all the most important topics of the law a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the texts and case books used is published and distributed.

The faculty is composed of sixteen resident members, who devote themselves regularly and continuously to the work of instruction, covering all the fundamental and ordinary branches of the law. In addition, provision is made for several courses by specialists upon such subjects as Admiralty Law, Copyright Law, Trade-mark Law, Legal Ethics, Patent Law, Roman Law, and Statute Law, each of these special courses consisting of from six to fifteen lectures.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-fourth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 24, 1918, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the summer session in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, Pleading and Evidence are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Many practicing lawyers avail themselves of this opportunity for further study or review. The Summer Session also offers an excellent opportunity to those who are preparing for examinations for admission to the bar, and students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than thirty-eight thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and the late Octavia W. Bates.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than three hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Secretary of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

There are no formal requirements for admission to the Summer Session. Students intending to pursue a full three year course may at that time, if they desire, file their credentials for admission to the School, or, if they prefer, the question of satisfying the entrance requirements may be deferred until the opening of the regular session in October. The requirements for admission as candidate for a degree are fully explained in the regular announcement of the School. They cover the completion of two years of college or university work in an approved college or university. A blank form for a certificate of this work may be obtained by addressing the Dean of the Law School.

FEES

The fee in the Law School is $26.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $6 to $8 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 20,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour, fare 74 cents; or by the electric car, in two hours, fare 45 cents. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor. The fare from Chicago to Ann Arbor is $6.00; from Toledo, $1.14.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing (upon examination) in this School.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Box L, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION.

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1918-1919 will open on Tuesday, October 1, 1918, and will continue until June 26, 1919.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman Law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even all the most important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

University of Michigan

Summer Session, 1918

SPECIAL PROGRAM FOR STUDENTS WHO HAVE BEEN IN THE NAVAL AND MILITARY SERV-ICE DURING THE WAR

Students of this Law School and students of other law schools with entrance requirements and standards of work substantially equivalent to those of this Law School, who have had their study interrupted by actual military or naval service during the Great War will be allowed to take a specially arranged course beginning with and including the entire summer session of 1919 and including the first semester of the academic year 1919-1920. This program will yield the equivalent of a year of credit and those who take it may recover a portion of the time lost while in the National Service. Only those who submit official evidence of actual military or naval service will be considered for this course.

Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than forty thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian H. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and the late Octavia W. Bates.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than three hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Clerk of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the summer session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein towards a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. They include the completion of at least two years of work in an approved college.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the summer session on presenting to the Dean evidence of possessing the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the summer session.

FEEs

The fee in the Law School is $26.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $7 to $9 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 20,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour; or by the electric car, in two hours. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinaations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received. Under similar conditions attorneys at law in good and regular standing from any state in which an adequate examination for admission to the bar is required may apply for one year's advanced standing (upon examination) in this School.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1919-1920 will open on Tuesday, September 30, 1919, and will continue until June 24, 1920.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman Law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even all the most important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-sixth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 21, 1920, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, most of the elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the Summer Session in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, Pleading and Evidence are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than forty-two thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, and the late Octavia W. Bates.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Clerk of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein towards a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. They include the completion of at least two years of work in an approved college.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence of possessing the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEEES

The fee in the Law School is $31.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of five dollars. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $7 to $10 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

LOCATION

The city of Ann Arbor has a population of about 20,000, and is delightfully located in southeastern Michigan, within easy reach of numerous beautiful lakes. The University Campus occupies about forty acres of land, located above the city and overlooking the beautiful valley of the Huron River. The city is on both the Michigan Central and Ann Arbor Railroads, and thus is easily accessible from all points. Electric cars run every hour to Jackson and Detroit, connecting at Detroit with the steamers for Put-in-Bay, Cleveland, St. Clair Flats, Port Huron, and other points. A delightful pleasure trip of a day or more on the water is thus within easy reach at any time, and at a very slight expense. Ann Arbor is an ideal place for summer residence and study.

RAILROAD CONNECTIONS

Ann Arbor may be reached from Detroit via the Michigan Central Railroad in one hour; or by the electric car in two hours. The Buffalo and Cleveland boats arrive in Detroit in ample time to connect with the early morning trains for Ann Arbor. Students from Chicago or points farther west may come directly to Ann Arbor via the Michigan Central, or via the Wabash Railroad to Milan, Michigan, and then via the Ann Arbor Railroad to Ann Arbor.

From many parts of the country summer tourist tickets may be purchased at a low rate to Detroit or other points in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor. Apply to local ticket agents for full information.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed, or, if they later enroll in the regular session, they will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then in the following October upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1920-1921 will open on Tuesday, October 5, 1920, and will continue until June 30, 1921.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even all the most important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Summer Session

University of Michigan, 1920

EDWARD H. KRAUS, PH.D., DEAN

The Summer Session is a regular session of the University, and in addition to the courses in the Law School outlined in this Announcement, instruction will be given in other Colleges and Schools of the University.

LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS

In a session of eight weeks, beginning June 28 and ending August 20, graduate, undergraduate, special, and technical courses, many of them designed especially for teachers, are offered in the following subjects:

Summer Session

The twenty-seventh annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 27, 1921, and continue for ten weeks. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in any two successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. In addition to these, elective courses will be given every second or third summer in such order as to meet the requirements of those who contemplate taking advantage of the Summer Session in working for their law degree. The fundamental courses in Contracts, Torts, Pleading and Evidence are usually offered each summer. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September. The work given in the summer is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session, and the completion of any course in the summer gives the student full credit toward a degree in any subject so passed. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law. Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than forty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, and H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this school.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein towards a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. They include the completion of at least two years of work in an approved college.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence of possessing the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEES

The fee in the Law School is $37.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates, be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation is published at the opening of the session.

During the continuance of the Summer Session a course of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Box L, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

*These courses extend through the whole session of ten weeks and cannot be elected for one term only.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1921-1922 will open on Tuesday, September 27, 1921, and will continue until June 19, 1922.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even all the most important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Law School

Summer Session

The twenty-eighth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 20, 1922, and continue until Saturday, August 26, 1922. The session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than forty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, both English and American. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University, including the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, and H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to use of by students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this school.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein towards a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. They include the completion of at least two years of work in an approved college.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence of possessing the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEEES

The fee in the Law School is $37.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

A special advantage enjoyed by students in the University of Michigan is the low cost of board and rooms in Ann Arbor. Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the word passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous record to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Admission to advanced standing is upon examination. Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. He will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the curriculum.

The above certificates may be furnished at the time the student enters the Summer Session, or he may first take the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

The normal amount of work for students in the Summer Session is twelve hours per week. In exceptional cases this may be modified, but students are strongly advised against attempting more, except in cases where it is necessary to elect two courses amounting to fifteen hours per week. Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the session.

SCHEDULE OF WORK FOR 1922

During the continuance of the Summer Session a course of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Box L, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1922-1923 will open on Tuesday, September 26, 1922, and will continue until June 18, 1923.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the most important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to practice with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Summer Session

The twenty-ninth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 19, 1923, and continue until Thursday, August 30, 1923. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than fifty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts, the Federal Courts, and the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, English, American, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, and H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will then be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this school.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. They include the completion of at least two years of work in an approved college.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence that they possess the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to enable them to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEEs

The fee in the Law School is $39.50 for men and $38. for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to all students who are life members or participating life members of the Michigan Union, or who were in attendance at the University during the second semester of the preceding academic year.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week. There are no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

Students taking first year subjects exclusively are permitted to elect a maximum of 14 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 9 credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Students taking second or third year subjects, either exclusively or in part, are permitted to elect a maximum of 12 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 8 credit hours for the full 10 weeks session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the session.

SCHEDULE OF WORK FOR 1923FOR THE WHOLE SESSION, JUNE 19 TO AUGUST 30First Year Subjects*

During the continuance of the Summer Session a course of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Summer Session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1923-1924 will open on Tuesday, September 25, 1923, and will continue until June 16, 1924.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Summer Session

The thirtieth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 17, 1924, and continue until Thursday, August 28, 1924. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than sixty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the Federal Courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will then be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. In accordance with the regulations at present in force, (but in which changes have been made to take effect in 1926 and 1928 as hereinafter set forth), the satisfactory completion of a minimum of two full years of college work in an approved university or college, in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, is required of all candidates for a degree.

CHANGES IN REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION TO TAKE EFFECT IN 1926 AND 1928

Attention is called to the fact that the following changes in requirements for admission have been made to take effect as herein indicated, viz:

Beginning with the fall of 1926 the satisfactory completion of a minimum of three years of work in an approved university or college in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, will be required of all candidates for degrees.

Beginning with the fall of 1928 the following persons only will be eligible for admission as candidates for degrees.

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 18 and 19 of the annual announcement, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence that they possess the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to enable them to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEEs

The fee in the Law School is $39.50 for men and $38.00 for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to all students who are life members or participating life members of the Michigan Union.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week. There are at present no dormitories for men, but rooms may be obtained in private houses near the Campus. During the summer especially, students will have no difficulty in finding desirable accommodations.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

Students taking first year subjects exclusively are permitted to elect a maximum of 14 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 9 credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Students taking second or third year subjects, either exclusively or in part, are permitted to elect a maximum of 12 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 8 credit hours for the full 10 weeks session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

A graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts and of the Law School of the University has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, to include living accommodations for one hundred and seventy-three students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of three hundred students, and a number of suites for visiting lawyers, assembly room, reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all to be known as 'The Lawyers' Club.

It is expected that these buildings will be ready for occupancy by the opening of the University in 1924. The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings are being erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from this gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

A plan of assignment of rooms, the determination of preference, and the rules and scheme of administration of the buildings above referred to, will be formulated and published in the near future.

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the Second and Third Year classes act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments: First, leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; second, notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; third, abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases, and, fourth, reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

Mr. William W. Cook, of New York, who is a graduate of the Literary Department of the University in 1880 and of the Law School in 1882, has presented to the University of Michigan the entire income from royalties on the latest edition of his well-known work on "Corporations", to be used in providing for the publication of articles of a high degree of excellence in the Michigan Law Review. Specifically, the purpose of this gift is stated to be to obtain and publish articles on legal, administrative and constitutional questions of the day. It will permit the Michigan Law Review to secure articles from the most competent authorities on legal subjects and is to be regarded as a very notable step in the encouragement of the production of legal literature of the highest type.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the text-book or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those engaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1924-1925 will open on Tuesday, September 23, 1924, and will continue until June 15, 1925.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Dean of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Summer Session

Law School

Summer Session

The thirty-first annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 16, 1925, and continue until Thursday, August 27, 1925. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The work of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree. Instruction is given for the most part by members of the faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools.

LIBRARY

The Law Library now contains more than sixty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the Federal Courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are in the Library.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, and he will then be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual announcement of the school for the regular academic year. In accordance with the regulations at present in force, (but in which changes have been made to take effect in 1926 and 1928 as hereinafter set forth), the satisfactory completion of a minimum of two full years of collegiate work in an approved university or college, in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, is required of all candidates for a degree.

CHANGES IN REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION TO TAKE EFFECT IN 1926 AND 1928

Attention is called to the fact that the following changes in requirements for admission have been made to take effect as herein indicated, viz:

Beginning with the year 1926 the satisfactory completion of a minimum of three years of work in an approved university or college in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, will be required of all candidates for degrees.

Beginning with the year 1928 the following persons only will be eligible for admission as candidates for degrees.

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 19 and 20 of the annual announcement, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence that they possess the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to enable them to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

FEES

The fee in the Law School is $39.50 for men and $38.00 for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to all students who are life members or participating life members of the Michigan Union.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

CREDIT

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

The following are the advanced standing requirements of the Law School:

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the text-books used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

COURSES OF STUDY

Students taking first year subjects exclusively are permitted to elect a maximum of 15 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 10 credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Students taking second or third year subjects, either exclusively or in part, are permitted to elect a maximum of 12 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 8 credit hours for the full 10 weeks session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the session.

During the continuance of the summer session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the summer session.

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

Mr. William W. Cook, of the New York Bar, who is a graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Class of 1880, and of the Law School, Class of 1882, has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, which include living accommodations for one hundred and seventy-three students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of three hundred students, and a number of suites for visiting lawyers, assembly room, reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all known as 'The Lawyers' Club.

The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings have been erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from the gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

In addition the donor, with remarkable foresight, has provided that all profits derived from the operation of the Club are to be used for the improvement of the law and of legal education. To quote his own words:

"All dues and all profit from the operation of the building shall be used exclusively for legal research work, to be expended from time to time as the Governors may deem best. This legal research work will render possible the study of comparative jurisprudence and legislation, national and state, and also of foreign countries, ancient and modern. Such work should be of use in proposed legislation, and, besides leading to the production of reliable law treatises and studies, would help to systematize the law as a science. The European plan of giving leisure time to professors to pursue their studies and produce original works, may well be applied in America to professors of law, who at present are absorbed too exclusively in class-room work. A legal research fund could be used to pay part of their salaries, thus giving them time for original research.

“The character of the legal profession depends largely on the character of the law schools. Real lawyers were never needed more than now, and they have grave responsibilities. There never was a time when they had so much power as now. It will be for the lawyers to hold this great republic together, without sacrifice of its democratic institutions.”

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the Second and Third Year classes act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments: First, leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; second, notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; third, abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases, and, fourth, reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

Mr. William W. Cook, of New York, who is a graduate of the Literary Department of the University in 1880 and of the Law School in 1882, has presented to the University of Michigan the entire income from royalties on the latest edition of his well-known work on "Corporations," to be used in providing for the publication of articles of a high degree of excellence in the Michigan Law Review. Specifically, the purpose of this gift is stated to be to obtain and publish articles on legal, administrative and constitutional questions of the day. It will permit the Michigan Law Review to secure articles from the most competent authorities on legal subjects and is to be regarded as a very notable step in the encouragement of the production of legal literature of the highest type.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the text-book or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those engaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

REGULAR SESSION

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1925-1926 will open on Tuesday, September 22, 1925, and will continue until June 14, 1926.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory study.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Secretary of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-second annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 15, 1926, and will continue until Thursday, August 26, 1926. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September.

Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains more than sixty-five thousand volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are available on the shelves.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The general Library of the University, which contains more than four hundred thousand volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

FEEs

The fee in the Law School is $39.50 for men and $38.00 for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to all students who are life members or participating life members of the Michigan Union.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Admission

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

I. Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual Announcement of the Law School for the regular academic year. In accordance with the regulations at present in force (but in which changes have been made to take effect in 1928 as hereinafter set forth), the satisfactory completion of a minimum of three full years of collegiate work in an approved university or college, in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, is required of all candidates for a degree.

Attention is called to the fact that the following changes in requirements for admission have been made to take effect as herein indicated, viz:

Beginning with the year 1928 the following persons only will be eligible for admission as candidates for degrees.

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 19 and 20 of the annual Announcement of the Law School, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

2. Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence that they possess the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to enable them to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the textbooks used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

Courses of Study

Students taking first year subjects exclusively are permitted to elect a maximum of 15 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 10 credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Students taking second or third year subjects, either exclusively or in part, are permitted to elect a maximum of 12 recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of 8 credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

SCHEDULE OF WORK FOR 1926

The first term begins June 15th and ends July 20th.
The second term begins July 21st and ends August 26th.

FIRST YEAR SUBJECTS

Contracts.—Nine hours per week both terms, six hours credit. Professor COSTIGAN.

Pleading.—Six hours per week both terms, four hours credit. Professor STASON.

SECOND AND THIRD YEAR SUBJECTS

Additional Information

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1926-1927 will open on Tuesday, September 28, 1926, and will continue until June 20, 1927.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory training.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Secretary of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

Mr. William W. Cook, of the New York Bar, who is a graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Class of 1880, and of the Law School, Class of 1882, has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, which include living accommodations for one hundred and sixty students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of three hundred students, and a number of suites for visiting lawyers, assembly room, reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all known as 'The Lawyers' Club.

The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings have been erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from the gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

In addition, the donor with remarkable foresight has provided that all profits derived from the operation of the Club are to be used for the improvement of the law and of legal education. To quote his own words:

"All dues and all profit from the operation of the building shall be used exclusively for legal research work, to be expended from time to time as the Governors may deem best. This legal research work will render possible the study of comparative jurisprudence and legislation, national and state, and also of foreign countries, ancient and modern. Such work should be of use in proposed legislation, and, besides leading to the production of reliable law treatises and studies, would help to systematize the law as a science. The European plan of giving leisure time to professors to pursue their studies and produce original works, may well be applied in America to professors of law, who at present are absorbed too exclusively in classroom work. A legal research fund could be used to pay part of their salaries, thus giving them time for original research.

"The character of the legal profession depends largely on the character of the law schools. Real lawyers were never needed more than now, and they have grave responsibilities. There never was a time when they had so much power as now. It will be for the lawyers to hold this great republic together, without sacrifice of its democratic institutions."

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the second and third year classes act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments devoted, respectively, to the following: leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases; reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

Mr. William W. Cook, of New York, who is a graduate of the Literary Department of the University in 1880 and of the Law School in 1882, has presented to the University of Michigan the entire income from royalties on the latest edition of his well-known work on Corporations, to be used in providing for the publication of articles of a high degree of excellence in the Michigan Law Review. The purpose of this gift is to obtain and publish articles on legal, administrative and constitutional questions of the day. It will permit the Michigan Law Review to secure articles from the most competent authorities on legal subjects and is to be regarded as a very notable step in the encouragement of the production of legal literature of the highest type.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the textbook or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those engaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

THE SUMMER SESSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

EDWARD H. KRAUS, Dean

The Summer Session is a regular session of the University. In addition to the courses in the Law School, instruction will be given in all other Colleges and Schools of the University as follows:

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-eighth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 21, 1932, and will continue until Thursday, September 1, 1932. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll as candidates for a degree will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains approximately 87,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, the constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals, are available on the shelves.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 523,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $41.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to students who are life members of the Michigan Union or the Michigan League.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Requirements for Admission

CANDIDATES FOR DEGREES

Students intending to enter the Summer Session for the purpose of entering upon the study of the law, with a view to securing a degree from this Law School, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session; i.e., that they have been graduated from an approved college or university with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Students who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have pursued the study of the law in some other approved law school, may become candidates for admission on advanced standing, with credit allowed for not more than one year's work. Students whose applications for admission on advanced standing have been accepted will find it advisable to attend at least one summer session, so as to adjust previous records to the course of study of this School.

ENROLLMENT FOR SUMMER SESSION ONLY

Students from approved law schools who desire to enroll in the Summer Session for the purpose of earning credits to be certified to such approved law schools, may be admitted at the discretion of the Dean of this School. Such students should forward certificates showing (a) good standing in the schools from which they come, and (b) that they meet the regular entrance requirements of this School.

Registration

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Cashier of the University. He should next return with the Cashier's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student of this School.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours a week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten weeks' session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

Schedule of Work for 1932

The first term begins June 21 and ends July 26. The second term begins July 27 and ends September 1.

All classes meet six hours a week. Courses which continue throughout the entire Summer Session earn four hours of credit each. Courses which continue for five weeks only earn two hours of credit each.

FIRST TERM ONLY

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-third annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 21, 1927, and will continue until Thursday, September 1, 1927. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September.

Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains more than 68,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and text-books, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are available on the shelves.

The constitutions, codes and statutes of most of the countries of the world have recently been added to the library, as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 600,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

FEES

The fee in the Law School is $40.50 for men and $39.00 for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Admission

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

1. Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual Announcement of the Law School for the regular academic year. In accordance with the regulations at present in force (but in which changes have been made to take effect in 1928 as hereinafter set forth), the satisfactory completion of a minimum of three full years of collegiate work in an approved university or college, in addition to an academic or high school course of four years, is required of all candidates for a degree.

Attention is called to the fact that the following changes in requirements for admission have been made to take effect as herein indicated, viz :

Beginning with the year 1928 the following persons only will be eligible for admission as candidates for degrees.

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 19 and 20 of the annual Announcement of the Law School, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

2. Students who do not intend to work for a law degree, but who desire to take special work for review, or as supplementary to study in other fields, or for other purposes, may, in special cases, be admitted to the Summer Session on presenting to the Dean evidence that they possess the amount of education and other qualifications necessary to enable them to pursue such work to advantage. This evidence must be submitted in advance, so that it may be passed upon at least ten days before the opening of the Summer Session.

ADVANCED STANDING

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the textbooks used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours per week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten weeks session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1927-1928 will open on Tuesday, September 19, 1927, and will continue until June 18, 1928.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory training.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Secretary of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

Mr. William W. Cook, of the New York Bar, who is a graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Class of 1880, and of the Law School, Class of 1882, has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, which include living accommodations for 160 students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of 300 students, and a number of suites for visiting lawyers, assembly room, reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all known as The Lawyer's Club.

The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings have been erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from the gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

In addition, the donor with remarkable foresight has provided that all profits derived from the operation of the Club are to be used for the improvement of the law and of legal education. To quote his own words:

"All dues and all profit from the operation of the building shall be used exclusively for legal research work, to be expended from time to time as the Governors may deem best. This legal research work will render possible the study of comparative jurisprudence and legislation, national and state, and also of foreign countries, ancient and modern. Such work should be of use in proposed legislation, and, besides leading to the production of reliable law treatises and studies, would help to systematize the law as a science. The European plan of giving leisure time to professors to pursue their studies and produce original works, may well be applied in America to professors of law, who at present are absorbed too exclusively in classroom work. A legal research fund could be used to pay part of their salaries, thus giving them time for original research.

"The character of the legal profession depends largely on the character of the law schools. Real lawyers were never needed more than now, and they have grave responsibilities. There never was a time when they had so much power as now. It will be for the lawyers to hold this great republic together, without sacrifice of its democratic institutions."

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the third year class act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments devoted, respectively, to the following: leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases; reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

Mr. William W. Cook, of New York, who is a graduate of the Literary Department of the University in 1880 and of the Law School in 1882, has presented to the University of Michigan the entire income from royalties on the latest edition of his well-known work on Corporations, to be used in providing for the publication of articles of a high degree of excellence in the Michigan Law Review. The purpose of this gift is to obtain and publish articles on legal, administrative and constitutional questions of the day. It will permit the Michigan Law Review to secure articles from the most competent authorities on legal subjects and is to be regarded as a very notable step in the encouragement of the production of legal literature of the highest type.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the textbook or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those exgaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

THE SUMMER SESSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

EDWARD H. KRAUS, Dean

The Summer Session is a regular session of the University. In addition to the courses in the Law School, instruction will be given in all other Colleges and Schools of the University as follows:

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-fourth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 19, 1928, and will continue until Thursday, August 30, 1928. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September.

Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains more than 68,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are available on the shelves.

The constitutions, codes and statutes of most of the countries of the world have recently been added to the library, as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The Library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 650,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

FEES

The fee in the Law School is $40.50 for men and $39.00 for women. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

COST OF LIVING

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Admission

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

1. Students intending to enter the Summer Session, for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual Announcement of the Law School for the regular academic year.

Attention is called to the requirements for admission now in effect:

The following persons only are eligible for admission as candidates for degrees.

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 17 and 18 of the annual Announcement of the Law School, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

ADVANCED STANDING

tificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the textbooks used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or he may if he prefers first take work in the Summer Session, and then at the opening of the regular session, may upon furnishing satisfactory certificates be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

Courses of Study

Additional Information

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1928-1929 will open on Monday, September 17, 1928, and will continue until June 17, 1929.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well-developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory training.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Secretary of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

Mr. William W. Cook, of the New York Bar, who is a graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Class of 1880, and of the Law School, Class of 1882, has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, which include living accommodations for 160 students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of 300 students, and a number of suites for visiting lawyers, assembly room, reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all known as 'The Lawyers' Club.

The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings have been erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from the gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

In addition, the donor, with remarkable foresight, has provided that all profits derived from the operation of the Club are to be used for the improvement of the law and of legal education. To quote his own words:

"All dues and all profit from the operation of the building shall be used exclusively for legal research work, to be expended from time to time as the Governors may deem best. This legal research work will render possible the study of comparative jurisprudence and legislation, national and state, and also of foreign countries, ancient and modern. Such work should be of use in proposed legislation, and, besides leading to the production of reliable law treatises and studies, would help to systematize the law as a science. The European plan of giving leisure time to professors to pursue their studies and produce original works, may well be applied in America to professors of law, who at present are absorbed too exclusively in classroom work. A legal research fund could be used to pay part of their salaries, thus giving them time for original research.

"The character of the legal profession depends largely on the character of the law schools. Real lawyers were never needed more than now, and they have grave responsibilities. There never was a time when they had so much power as now. It will be for the lawyers to hold this great republic together, without sacrifice of its democratic institutions."

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the third year class act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments devoted, respectively, to the following: leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases; reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

Mr. William W. Cook, of New York, who is a graduate of the Literary Department of the University in 1880 and of the Law School in 1882, has presented to the University of Michigan the entire income from royalties on the latest edition of his well-known work on Corporations, to be used in providing for the publication of articles of a high degree of excellence in the Michigan Law Review. The purpose of this gift is to obtain and publish articles on legal, administrative and constitutional questions of the day. It will permit the Michigan Law Review to secure articles from the most competent authorities on legal subjects and is to be regarded as a very notable step in the encouragement of the production of legal literature of the highest type.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the textbook or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those engaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

THE SUMMER SESSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

EDWARD H. KRAUS, Dean

The Summer Session is a regular session of the University. In addition to the courses in the Law School, instruction will be given in all other Colleges and Schools of the University as follows:

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-fifth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 18, 1929, and will continue until Thursday, August 29, 1929. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session. The Summer Session thus affords those who are unable to attend at other seasons of the year opportunity to enjoy thorough instruction in the law.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll in the Summer Session as candidates for a degree, if they later enroll in the regular session, will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions. They may thus be able, by beginning the work in June of any summer, to complete the course two years from the following September.

Students who plan to enter the School upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to take at least one Summer Session as a preparation for further work.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains approximately 80,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are available on the shelves.

The constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world have recently been added to the library, as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The library has been enriched by a number of gifts from friends of the University. Among the donors are included the Honorable Richard Fletcher, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, the Honorable O. H. Dean, of Kansas City, the heirs of the late Honorable Christian N. Buhl, of Detroit, the Honorable Samuel T. Douglas, formerly one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of Michigan, the heirs of the Honorable Thomas M. Cooley, the late Octavia W. Bates, the Honorable H. B. Hutchins, formerly Dean of the Law School and President of the University, the estate of the late E. W. Pendleton, Justice J. H. Steere, of the Michigan Supreme Court, and the Law Class of 1922.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 456,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the continuance of the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $40.50. Students regularly enrolled and paying the full fee in the Summer Session of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, may take work in law by paying an additional fee of $7.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to students who are life members of the Michigan Union or the Michigan League.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Admission

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students intending to enter the Summer Session for the purpose of pursuing work therein with a view to securing a degree, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session, which are fully explained in the annual Announcement of the Law School for the regular academic year.

The following persons only are eligible for admission as candidates for degrees:

First, persons who have graduated from an approved university or college with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Second, students who have been admitted to the combined curriculum in letters and law of this University, as described on pages 17 and 18 of the annual Announcement of the Law School, or to the similar combined curriculum of any other approved university or college which maintains such a curriculum, provided it is administered on substantially the same plan and with the same restrictions as that of this University.

ADVANCED STANDING

Persons who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have satisfactorily completed work in an approved law school, may, upon presentation of a certificate of scholarship and of honorable dismissal from such school, become candidates for advanced standing in this School to the extent of the work so completed. The certificate should show the nature of the work, the time it was pursued, the textbooks used, and the grade received.

All candidates for advanced standing should secure the above mentioned certificates of preparatory work and of legal study and send them to the Dean of the School before presenting themselves for admission. The Dean will then inform them whether they may receive advanced credit, and as to the time that will probably be required to complete the requirements for a degree.

A student may furnish the above certificates at the time he enters the Summer Session, or at the opening of the regular session, and thereupon be regularly enrolled as a candidate for a degree.

Students who expect to apply for admission upon advanced standing will find it advantageous to attend at least one Summer Session. They may in this way not only secure credit in the subjects pursued, but may also adjust their previous records to the course of study in this School, and may make up deficiencies, if any, in the amount of work previously completed, so as to be able to finish the work for the degree without carrying extra hours. They may also, during the summer, take examinations upon subjects previously studied in which they are entitled to apply for advanced standing.

REGISTRATION

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student in this School.

Additional Information

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours a week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten weeks' session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

REGULAR SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

The regular session of the Law School of the University of Michigan for 1929-1930 will open on Monday, September 30, 1929, and will close June 23, 1930.

The course of instruction is a graded one, and extends through three years of nine months each. The curriculum covers every important subject of the law, and on the procedural and practical side includes training and practice in pleading and procedure by the aid of a well developed and equipped practice court under the supervision of the professors of practice and procedure. The Faculty recognizes that the primary purpose of the law school is to train men to practice law, but provision is made in addition for instruction of an advanced nature, for the training of law teachers, scholars and writers, in such subjects as jurisprudence, comparative law, history of law, philosophy of law, Roman law, and other related subjects. To meet the increasingly difficult problem arising from the impossibility of covering in a three-year period of study even the more important topics of the law, a four-year curriculum is provided. Students who find it possible to do so are urged to take this longer training for their profession. As it would require six years to complete all the law courses offered, the advantage of the four years of study is at once evident, if the student is to come to the practice of the law with a broad and thorough preparatory training.

At the opening of each semester a schedule showing the hours of recitation and the books used is published and distributed.

An announcement giving information as to the regular course will be mailed upon application. Address the Secretary of the Law School, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

THE LAWYERS' CLUB

Mr. William W. Cook, of the New York Bar, who is a graduate of the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, Class of 1880, and of the Law School, Class of 1882, has made a most munificent and original gift to the cause of legal education. It takes the form of a group of connected buildings, which include living accommodations for 160 students, with bedrooms and studies, a beautiful dining hall which will accommodate upwards of 300, a number of suites for visiting lawyers, an assembly room, a reading room, and other features appropriate to a club of this character, all known as 'The Lawyers' Club.

The construction is of the best possible kind and the architectural designs are of an extremely interesting and attractive Gothic type. These buildings have been erected upon a tract of land acquired by the University for this purpose, and are so located upon that tract that it will be possible to add dormitories and a law school building, making a quadrangle. It is hoped that the University may secure the means for the other buildings for such a quadrangle, in the near future.

The donor and the University authorities believe that the gift will make possible a development of legal education of a superior type. The advantage of having students housed under the most sanitary and generally attractive conditions is not the greatest benefit to be derived from the gift. It is believed that a large number of graduates and other lawyers will desire to join the Lawyers' Club and visit here for the purpose of taking advantage of the Law Library to work upon difficult law problems, free from the distractions and interruptions of city practice. Contacts of these judges and lawyers with the students will undoubtedly prove of great benefit.

In addition, the donor, with remarkable foresight, has provided that all profits derived from the operation of the Club are to be used for the improvement of the law and of legal education. To quote his own words:

"All dues and all profit from the operation of the building shall be used exclusively for legal research work, to be expended from time to time as the Governors may deem best. This legal research work will render possible the study of comparative jurisprudence and legislation, national and state, and also of foreign countries, ancient and modern. Such work should be of use in proposed legislation, and, besides leading to the production of reliable law treatises and studies, would help to systematize the law as a science. The European plan of giving leisure time to professors to pursue their studies and produce original works, may well be applied in America to professors of law, who at present are absorbed too exclusively in classroom work. A legal research fund could be used to pay part of their salaries, thus giving them time for original research.

"The character of the legal profession depends largely on the character of the law schools. Real lawyers were never needed more than now, and they have grave responsibilities. There never was a time when they had so much power as now. It will be for the lawyers to hold this great republic together, without sacrifice of its democratic institutions."

MICHIGAN LAW REVIEW

The Michigan Law Review is a legal periodical conducted under the auspices of the Law School. It is edited by members of the Law Faculty, and all members of the Faculty co-operate in conducting it. Students selected from the third-year class act as editorial assistants.

The purpose is to give expression to the legal scholarship of the University, and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems, and by calling attention to the more important developments in the field of jurisprudence.

The Review is made up of four chief departments devoted, respectively, to the following: leading articles upon important and interesting legal subjects; notes and comments upon current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; abstracts and digests of the more important recent cases; reviews of books and comments on legal literature.

It is the aim to make the Review practical without usurping the functions of the textbook or the digest, and scholarly without being so academic in character as to be out of touch with the needs and aims of the lawyers of today. It contains about one hundred pages in each issue, and regularly appears on the first of each month during the academic year. The enterprise is in no sense conducted for the pecuniary benefit of those engaged in it. All profits which may accrue are devoted to the improvement of the magazine.

Special subscription rates are provided for students in the School. It is recommended that general advantage be taken of this opportunity to keep in touch with current legal problems and literature.

THE SUMMER SESSION IN THE UNIVERSITY

EDWARD H. KRAUS, Dean

The Summer Session is a regular session of the University. In addition to the courses in the Law School, instruction will be given in all other Colleges and Schools of the University as follows:

COLLEGE OF LITERATURE, SCIENCE, AND THE ARTS

COLLEGES OF ENGINEERING AND ARCHITECTURE

The courses in the Colleges of Engineering and Architecture continue for eight weeks, beginning June 24. The courses, designed for the regular students of the Colleges, are also open to others qualified to pursue them. Work is offered in the following subjects: Aeronautics, Architecture, Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Engineering Mechanics, Mechanical Engineering, Mechanism and Engineering Drawing, Military Science and Tactics, Shop Practice, and Surveying.

MEDICAL SCHOOL

The courses in Medicine and Surgery will begin June 24, and in general continue for six weeks. They are intended for practicing physicians and medical students, and are as follows: Anatomy (eight weeks), Bacteriology, Dermatology and Syphilology, Internal Medicine, Neurology, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ophthalmology, Otolaryngology (eight weeks), Pathology, Pediatrics and Infectious Diseases, Pharmacology and Materia Medica, Physiological Chemistry (eight weeks), Physiology (eight weeks), Roentgenology, and Surgery.

COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

Courses in Pharmaceutical Chemistry and Pharmacy will begin on June 24, and continue for eight weeks.

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

The School of Dentistry offers during the Summer Session those parts of the regular curriculum in dentistry which are taught in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts and in the Medical School.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

In a session of eight weeks, beginning June 24, and ending August 16, courses in the following subjects will be given in the School of Education: History and Principles of Education; Educational Administration and Supervision; Educational Psychology, Mental Measurements, and Statistics; Teaching of Special Subjects, including Demonstration courses and Observation courses in the University High School; Vocational Education and Guidance; Hygiene and Public Health; Physical Education for Women, and Athletic Coaching and Administration.

To meet the needs of teachers and educational administrators who cannot attend the full session, a number of special four-week courses are offered, from June 24 to July 19, and from July 22 to August 16.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The Summer Session of the School of Business Administration extends from June 24 to August 16. The courses offered are: Personnel Organization and Production Principles, Advanced Accounting Principles, Production Management, Marketing Principles, Financial Principles, and Financial Management.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The graduate work in all Schools and Colleges of the University (except the Law School) is under the direction of the Graduate School. The degrees conferred are: Master of Arts, Master of Arts in Library Science, Master of Science, Master of Science in Chemistry, Master of Arts (or Master of Science) in Municipal Administration, Master of Landscape Design, Master of Science in Pharmacy, Master of Science in Engineering, Master of Science in Architecture, Master of Science in Public Health, Mechanical Engineer, Civil Engineer, Electrical Engineer, Chemical Engineer, Marine Engineer, Aeronautical Engineer, Geodetic Engineer, Naval Architect, Doctor of Public Health, Doctor of Science, and Doctor of Philosophy.

HYGIENE AND PUBLIC HEALTH

For public health workers and others interested in this field, a number of six-week courses are offered; and for those unable to attend these, six week-end institutes have been arranged.

CAMPS AND STATIONS

The University maintains a Biological Station, at which additional courses in Zoölogy and Botany are offered, and a Surveying Camp, on Douglas Lake in Cheboygan County, Michigan; a Forestry and Conservation Camp in the Upper Peninsula; and a Geology and Geography Station in Southern Kentucky.

FEES

Fees for the regular courses range from $33 to $41. For particulars, see the Announcement of the Summer Session, which will be sent upon request to the Secretary of the Summer Session.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-sixth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 24, 1930, and will continue until Thursday, September 4, 1930. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll as candidates for a degree will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains approximately 80,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, the constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals, are available on the shelves.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 456,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $40.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to students who are life members of the Michigan Union or the Michigan League.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

Requirements for Admission

CANDIDATES FOR DEGREES

Students intending to enter the Summer Session for the purpose of entering upon the study of the law, with a view to securing a degree from this Law School, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session; i.e., that they have graduated from an approved college or university with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Students who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have pursued the study of the law in some other approved law school, may become candidates for admission on advanced standing, with credit allowed for not more than one year's work. Students whose applications for admission on advanced standing have been accepted will find it advisable to attend at least one summer session, so as to adjust previous records to the course of study of this School.

ENROLLMENT FOR SUMMER SESSION ONLY

Students from approved law schools who desire to enroll in the Summer Session for the purpose of earning credits to be certified to such approved law schools, may be admitted at the discretion of the Dean of this School. Such students should forward certificates showing (a) good standing in the schools from which they come, and (b) that they meet the regular entrance requirements of this School.

Registration

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Treasurer of the University. He should next return with the Treasurer's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student of this School.

Additional Information

For further information concerning the Summer Session of the Law School (or concerning the regular session), address the Secretary of the Law Faculty, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours a week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten weeks' session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

SCHEDULE OF WORK FOR 1930

The first term begins June 24 and ends July 29. The second term begins July 30 and ends September 4.

All classes meet six hours per week. Courses which continue throughout the entire Summer Session earn four hours of credit each. Courses which continue for five weeks only earn two hours of credit each.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The thirty-seventh annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 23, 1931, and will continue until Thursday, September 3, 1931. The regular class work of the session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll as candidates for a degree will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a Summer Session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three Summer Sessions.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains approximately 82,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, the constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals, are available on the shelves.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 497,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $40.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Two dollars will be refunded to students who are life members of the Michigan Union or the Michigan League.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per week.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

EXTENT AND NATURE

The forty-first annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Tuesday, June 18, 1935, and will continue until Thursday, August 29, 1935. The regular classwork of the Session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session.

CREDIT VALUE

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll as candidates for a degree will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains over 112,000 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial Reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, the constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals, are available on the shelves.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than 563,000 volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $41.50. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $8 to $10 per week.

Requirements for Admission

CANDIDATES FOR DEGREES

Students intending to enter the Summer Session for the purpose of entering upon the study of the law, with a view to securing a degree from this Law School, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session; i.e., that they have been graduated from an approved college or university with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Students who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have pursued the study of the law in some other approved law school, may become candidates for admission on advanced standing, with credit allowed for not more than one year's work. Students whose applications for admission on advanced standing have been accepted will find it advisable to attend at least one summer session, so as to adjust previous records to the course of study of this School.

ENROLLMENT FOR SUMMER SESSION ONLY

Students from approved law schools who desire to enroll in the Summer Session for the purpose of earning credits to be certified to such approved law schools, may be admitted at the discretion of the Dean of this School. Such students should forward certificates showing (a) good standing in the schools from which they come, and (b) that they meet the regular entrance requirements of this School.

Registration

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Cashier of the University. He should next return with the Cashier's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student of this School.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours a week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten-week session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

Schedule of Work for 1935

The first term begins June 18 and ends July 23. The second term begins July 24 and ends August 29.

All classes meet six hours a week. Courses which continue throughout the entire Summer Session earn four hours of credit each. Courses which continue for five weeks only earn two hours of credit each.

SUMMER SESSION OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Instruction

Extent and Nature

The forty-fifth annual Summer Session of the Law School of the University of Michigan will begin Monday, June 19, 1939, and will continue until Wednesday, August 30, 1939. The regular classwork of the Session will be divided into two periods of five weeks each. The schedule of the Summer Session is planned so as to offer in successive summers most of the prescribed courses of the first two years of the work leading to a degree.

Instruction is given for the most part by members of the Faculty of the School, but a few courses will be given by men of recognized ability from other law schools. The work is the same in kind and amount as that given in the corresponding subjects in the regular session.

Credit Value

All students of the Summer Session will be entitled to a certificate of attendance. Those who pass examinations may secure certificates showing the work passed; those who enroll as candidates for a degree will be given credit toward graduation in the subjects passed in the Summer Session.

Students who begin their law study with a summer session may shorten the time required to complete the work leading to a degree from three calendar years to two regular years and three summer sessions.

The Libraries

The Law Library now contains over 137,537 volumes, including all the published reports of the courts of last resort of every state in the Union and those of most of the intermediate appellate courts and the federal courts, as well as the English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, Australian, South African, and British Colonial reports. Duplicate, and in some cases triplicate, sets of several of these reports have been added. There is also an extensive collection of treatises and textbooks, American, English, Mexican, and European. Nearly complete sets of the statutes and session laws of the United States, Mexico, and Great Britain and her colonies, the constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the countries of the world, as well as the reported decisions of France and Germany, and practically all of the American and English legal periodicals are available on the shelves.

The international law seminar contains an adequate working library in public and private international law and maritime law.

The General Library of the University, which contains more than a million volumes, is also open to the use of students in the Law School. It is rich in works of interest and importance to the lawyer.

Lectures

During the Summer Session a number of special lectures will be given which are free to all students of the Session.

Fees and Expenses

The fee in the Law School is $45. Students paying the full fee in the Law School may elect work in the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts without additional charge.

All fees must be paid in advance.

All students of the Summer Session are entitled to medical advice by the physicians of the University Health Service.

Good board with comfortable rooms can be secured at prices ranging from $9 to $12 a week.

Requirements for Admission

Candidates for Degrees

Students intending to enter the Summer Session for the purpose of entering upon the study of law, with a view to securing a degree from this Law School, must present proof that they meet the entrance requirements of the regular session; i.e., that they have been graduated from an approved college or university with an A.B. degree or its equivalent.

Students who have the necessary qualifications for admission, and who have pursued the study of the law in some other approved law school, may become candidates for admission on advanced standing, with credit allowed for not more than one year's work. Students whose applications for admission on advanced standing have been accepted will find it advisable to attend at least one summer session, so as to adjust previous records to the course of study of this School.

Enrollment for Summer Session Only

Students from approved law schools who desire to enroll in the Summer Session for the purpose of earning credits to be certified to such approved law schools may be admitted at the discretion of the Dean of this School. Such students should forward certificates showing (a) good standing in the schools from which they come, and (b) that they meet the regular entrance requirements of this School.

Registration

The student should first register with the Recorder of the Law School, and then pay his fees to the Cashier of the University. He should next return with the Cashier's receipt, when he will be enrolled by the Secretary as a student of this School.

Courses of Study

Students are permitted to elect a maximum of twelve recitation hours a week, and to earn a maximum of eight credit hours for the full ten-week session.

Examinations in the various subjects will be given at the end of each course. These examinations must be taken by those who desire credit for work. A schedule showing the days and hours of recitation and the books used is published at the opening of the Session.

Schedule of Work for 1939

The first term begins June 19 and ends July 24. The second term begins July 25 and ends August 30.

All classes meet six hours a week. Courses which continue throughout the entire Summer Session earn four hours of credit each. Courses which continue for five weeks only earn two hours of credit each.
